country is burning up with bush fires everywhere. They have been in progress for over a week and reached a climax Tuesday, licking up in their path everything before them.

Fanned by a terrible gale of wind, the flames swooped down on the villages and mining camps, and the loss of property will run into enormous figures, while the death toll must be great, as Porcupine district, where the fire is at its worst, contains thousands of prospectors, whose camps are scattered over a wide area of country northward for three hundred miles and covering a wide section east and west flames are carrying on their work of destruction and death, and miners, prospectors and settlers are in a desperate plight, if they even escape with their lives, for supplies, buildings, and equipment are being wiped out of existence by a roaring wall of fire, which illumines the sky for many miles.

The town of Cochrane, at the junction of the T. & N. O. Railway and the Transcontinental, which was nearly wiped out the other day by fire, was levelled to the ground Tuesday, and the inhabitants are in a bad way for food and shelter, and are asking assistance from neighboring towns to the south. South Porcupine and Pottsville have been wiped off the map. Golden City was visited by fire, but the greater part of the town has been saved thus far, only the outskirts being burned. The south part of Tisdale has been swept clean, and other townships have suffered severely. All the mining camps from Dome to Whitney township have been burned. Hundreds of people, men, women, and children were forced to rush into lakes and streams to seek refuge from the intense and blistering heat of the conflagration, an inferno of terror, with immense clouds of smoke darkening the sky, illuminated by sheets of flame as the fire leaped from tree to tree with frightful rapidity and a terrible roar.

STRIKING STATEMENTS IN PREMIER'S SPEECH

Some Impressive Paragraphs in the Address of Sir Wilfred at Quebec.

"If God gives me good health, I am ready again to lead the flag to victory and to continue my work of doing my part for the development of Canada."

"This time it is with a double laurel on my head that I return to this country, because I have attracted the imprecations of the violent imperialists as well as the imprecations of the Jingoists of Nationalism."

"The English jingoists would have the British Empire bound by restriction. We Liberals of Canada, like the Liberals of England, believe in freedom of action and in the greatest possible freedom of trade."

"I do not believe that the manufacturers or the anti-reciprocity league are so short sighted as to fail to recognize that when the farmers are prosperous the manufacturers must be prosperous."

"The anti-reciprocity movement has been inspired solely by jingo Imperialists, both in England and in Canada, who with their narrow views would bind us to England alone and would prevent us from trading with the United States."

"The Ultra-Imperialists would restore the relations which existed between Canada and England prior to 1837. We insist on the right of self-government. My ambition is to satisfy the people of Canada alone and I believe it is my duty to advise legislation which will be acceptable to the people of Canada."

"Two years ago we negotiated a treaty with France by our own ministers. Now we have entered with an agreement of reciprocity with the United States and we asked of Great Britain the liberty to legislate as we decide in the best interests of Canada. I am glad to tell you that the Asquith Government at once decided to agree to this request, which was made in fulfillment of the antonymy of Canada."

ORANGE CELEBRATION.

A RECORD CROWD IN NAPANEE ON WEDNESDAY.

The counties of Lennox and Addington Orange celebration at Napanee was a great success. Excursions by boat and train arriving early in the day poured thousands into the town, which presented a gala appearance with bunting, mottoes, streamers, evergreens and Union Jacks displayed to good advantage. Forty-four lodges reported, and all morning the sounds of fife, drum and bands made the air resound with music dear to the hearts of the orangemen. At 1 o'clock the lodges congregated at the market square and the marshalls had a busy time getting the procession in line, over 1000 men were in the procession and it took a good half hour to pass. The Orangemen True Blues and Prentice Boys came from points between Brighton on the west and Landsdowne on the east and Madoc and Verona in the north. The parade was from the market east to the railway, down Bridge street, back up Dundas street, across the market, down Centre street, west on Dundas to West street, up West to Bridge and thence to the Driving Park. Arriving at the park stirring speeches were delivered by Rev. Steacy, Ottawa, Mr. W. J. Paul, M.P.P., Rev. W. E. Kidd, Napanee, and Mr. Geo. McCartney, grand organizer. The chair was accepted by Rev. C. W. DeMille, County Master. Several brass bands were in the parade and nearly every lodge had its fife and drum band. Bayview, No. 870, won the first prize, a silk Union Jack, for the best marching appearance. Enterprise, No. 430, won second, and Gananogue, No. 51, won third. Much credit is due to the committee in charge of the arrangements, and especially to the Secretary, Mr. U. M. Wilson. The visiting Orangemen were well pleased with the arrangements made for their reception. Special efforts were made by the hotels, restaurants, the Methodist churches and Salvation Army to feed the visitors, but despite all exertions some of the visitors had trouble in getting enough to eat in a reasonable time.

HARVEST HANDS NEEDED.

(From the Moose Jaw News.)

From present indications there will soon go up from the prairie country the cry, "The harvest is great, but the laborers are few."

Good judges, men who have seen crops grow in the West for a quarter of a century or more, say that a crop of 200,000,000 bushels of wheat is quite within the estimate. This means a crop eighty-five per cent greater than last year. Think of the demands which such an increased yield will make upon the harvesting facilities of the country. And wheat is only one portion of the crop. Add to this the yield of several other grains and one begins to realize how great an undertaking the harvesting of the aggregate crop will be.

It is further to be remembered that owing to the abundance of moisture, which has made growth rapid, the crop will contain an unusual amount of straw, which will render necessary the employment of a larger number of laborers than is usually required.

For these reasons it is evident that a much larger number of farm laborers will be required this year. The great question is, where are they to be found? In all departments of industry the cry for men goes up, so that if the demands of agriculture are to be met satisfactorily the Provincial Government must exert itself to the utmost to bring into the Province an adequate supply of labor. Hardly fewer than 22,000 harvest hands will be required.

Addington, all of which are hereinafter called "the Property."

AND WHEREAS the parties hereto have agreed that "the Corporation" shall sell to "the Company" all of the said "the Property" and "the Company" shall purchase from "the Corporation" all of the said "the Property" at the sum of $40,666.51 on the terms and conditions hereinafter set out:

NOW THIS AGREEMENT witnesseth that in consideration of the premises and of the sum of one dollar now paid by each of the parties hereto to the other, the receipt whereof is by each of said parties hereby acknowledged, the parties hereto Mutually Covenant, Promise and Agree with each other as follows:

1. "The Corporation" agrees to sell to "the Company," and "the Company" agrees to purchase from "the Corporation" all of "the Property" in the recitals above referred to, and to assign all its rights in and under its lease with the Great North Western Telegraph Co., at and for the sum of $40,666.51, payable by "the Company" to "the Corporation" at the office of the Treasurer of "the Corporation" at the expiration of thirty (30) days from the date of the final passing of the By-law confirming this Agreement, at the hour of twelve o'clock noon; and on payment of said moneys "the Corporation" agrees to deliver to "the Company" a good and sufficient deed of transfer of all the said "the Property" free from all incumbrance, and the Mayor and Clerk are hereby authorized to execute the Deed of transfer therefor and affix the Corporate Seal thereto.

2. "The Company" shall search the title to the lands at its own expense and "the Corporation" shall not be bound or required to furnish either Registrar's or Solicitor's abstract of title to the same other than any it has in its possession, or produce or furnish any title deeds or copies of same other than those in its possession, either for the purpose of verifying the abstract or otherwise, and if "the Company" has any objections to the title it shall deliver the same to "the Corporation" within thirty days after the date hereof, and if "the Corporation" without any default on its part is unable to make a good title to the said lands within ten days from the date of said objections being delivered, if "the Company" declines to take such title as "the Corporation" is so able to make, then either party may withdraw from this contract on the repayment of "the Corporation" to "the Company" of any sum of money paid on account of the purchase money, and "the Company" shall not be entitled to any compensation or expenses in connection therewith. If "the Company" fails or neglects to deliver any objections to title as aforesaid within the time limited as aforesaid it shall be considered that "the Company" has accepted the title which "the Corporation" is able to give, and time is to be the essence rooms, pantries, porches, vestibules, attics, and outbuildings shall not be counted, although lighted. "The Company" shall at its own cost supply the meters to each consumer, but where the monthly invoice exceeds the sum of fifty cents no charge shall be made for meter rent, but where the monthly invoice is under fifty cents "the Company" shall be entitled to charge in addition to its monthly invoice a meter rent of twenty-five cents a month. While "the Company" shall be entitled to add the meter rent under the conditions above set out, if it be found on the first day of January in any year that the total invoice for the preceding year or time the current has been delivered equals or exceeds the sum of fifty cents per month for such time (exclusive of meter rent) the amount charged for such meter rent shall be deducted from and allowed to the consumer on his subsequent invoices. The consumer shall elect in writing delivered to "the Company," which of the two methods indicated he desires to be applied in his case for the electric energy furnished to him for lighting purposes, and such election shall stand good and be unchangeable without the consent of "the Company" for twelve months. The election so made by the consumer shall be made before the current is delivered in case of a new consumer, and if not so made the invoices shall be made up and chargeable for current at the rate first mentioned of ten cents per kilowatt hour, subject to reduction as aforesaid if paid within the time limit, and shall continue at such rate until the thirty-first day of December following, and to entitle any other consumer to the rates mentioned in the option above given, the election shall be handed in to "the Company" before the thirty-first day of December in any year, and if so handed in shall be continued for one year from the first day of January following, and not be liable to change for twelve months. It is also understood that the user of electric energy for lighting purposes as above, is to have the privilege to use electric energy for usual domestic purposes, such as heating flat irons, running dustless cleaners, sewing machines, and other small matters of a similar kind, and also under regulations as to attachments to be approved by "the Company" to run a motor requiring 25 horse power or less at the said rate of three cents per kilowatt hour. The power used shall be governed by and included in one or other of the above rates as may be decided by the said consumer.

7. "The Company" is to have the right to operate the present system of lighting streets, residences and other buildings, which it takes over as it is, subject to such improvements and repairs as may be deemed necessary under the conditions hereinafter set out.

8. "The Company" shall erect the poles, crossarms, guys, braces, wires and light appliances on the system of the said town, provided that "the Company," in extending such system beyond the limits provided in the schedule mentioned in the preceding paragraph hereof, shall not be required to carry its lines a greater distance from light to light or from its lines then in existence than 400 feet, except upon terms of "the Corporation" paying the actual cost of labor, poles and wiring, only for the additional distance, except in case the said extension of such system provide an annual revenue of at least ten per centum of the cost of said extension, and when such lights are so erected and installed they shall be maintained and lighted from the date of their erection and be paid for by "the Corporation" on the same terms and conditions as those then existing up to the termination of this Agreement.

11. "The Company" shall furnish, erect and maintain all poles, wiring, lamps, connections and fixtures, including crossarms and brackets, as may be required for the said lighting system, and shall keep in proper repair all such poles, lamps, wires and fixtures, and in case of any suits for damages caused by the electric current for or by reason of the poles, wires and every other matter connected with said lighting system "the Company" will defend all such suits at its own expense and pay all damages and costs for which "the Corporation" may become liable by reason of such suit or suits.

12. "The Company" agrees that the poles for street circuits shall be kept painted and shall not be dangerous or unsightly, or such as to incommode the adjoining property owner unnecessarily, and that the same shall be erected in a manner reasonably satisfactory to "the Corporation," or to its Council, and the written approval of the Clerk of "the Corporation," or other officer designated for such purpose by the Council of "the Corporation," shall be necessary for any new lamps erected under this Agreement, but such approval shall not relieve "the Company" from responsibility in case of accident or injury to person or property.

13. "The Company" agree to furnish a current strength of not less than six and six-tenths amperes, and a voltage of not less than seventy-five at each and every electric lamp, which must be maintained from time of starting up and during the hours of lighting, and every arc lamp shall be supplied with carbons of the best quality and suitable dimensions, with globes of clear glass and uniform thickness, and proper shape, to avoid casting rings or streaks of light and shadow, and the said globes shall be kept clean and whole, and all electric lamps used for lighting the streets shall burn with a clear, steady light without undue flickering or hissing, each and every night during the term of this Agreement. And "the Company" shall supply at each incandescent lamp electric energy of 115 volts, or such other voltage as may be necessary, and shall renew each and every incandescent electric lamp as soon as it has noticeably depreciated below sixty candle power.

The lamps shall burn each night, approximately from sunset to sunrise.

Schedule "A" to By-Law. Electric Light and Power Agreement

THIS AGREEMENT MADE (IN DUPLICATE) this 19th day of June, one thousand nine hundred and eleven.

BETWEEN THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWN OF NAPANEE (hereinafter called "the Corporation") of the first part, and SEYMOUR POWER AND ELECTRIC COMPANY, LIMITED, (hereinafter called "the Company") of the second part.

WHEREAS "the Corporation" is seized and possessed of certain goods, chattels, plant, machinery, and electrical apparatus used by "the Corporation" for the purpose of producing electric light and electric energy in the Town of Napanee, and of carrying on its said business, which goods, chattels, etc., above referred to, are taken to include pole, lines, cables, wires, lines, accumulators, insulators, transformers, lamps, works, appurtenances, appliances, tools, electric light fixtures, and all and everything used by "the Corporation" in connection with its business as producers of electric light and electric energy, and also a certain lease or license to use certain poles of the Great North Western Telegraph Co., and of certain real estate on which is erected a steam plant belonging to "the Corporation," which real estate may be described as follows:—As lot number fourteen (14) on the south side of Water street, in the Town of Napanee, in the County of Lennox and any objections to title as aforesaid within the time limited as aforesaid it shall be considered that "the Company" has accepted the title which "the Corporation" is able to give, and time is to be the essence of this Agreement.

3. "The Corporation" shall not be bound to tender a conveyance in any event, and if "the Company" makes default in payment of said moneys, "the Corporation" may resell "the Property" to any one, either person or corporation, and "the Company" shall bear all loss and all costs occasioned by a resale.

4. "The Company" covenants and agrees with "the Corporation" that it will pay the said sum of $40,-666.51 to the said "the Corporation" at the expiration of thirty days from the date of the final passing of the By-law confirming this Agreement, according to the true intent and meaning of the foregoing Agreement, and will indemnify "the Corporation" from all rent which may become due the Great North Western Telegraph Co. from and after said date.

5. On "the Company" carrying out the foregoing conditions and terms of sale and purchase according to the true intent and meaning of same, a grant will automatically come into operation, giving to "the Company" and to its successors and assigns the right, privilege and authority to erect, maintain and operate for a period of thirty years from the date hereof, poles and wires together with all necessary guys, crossarms, braces and other appliances upon all the streets, highways and public places of the Town of Napanee, or any extensions thereof, for the purpose of supplying electric light, heat and power to "the Corporation" and the inhabitants of the Town of Napanee, and to erect such wires over, under or across all streets, highways or public places in the said town as may be necessary or convenient for the proper and safe conduct of such electricity for the purpose aforesaid.

6. "The Company" for itself, its successors and assigns, in consideration of such grant and privilege, hereby undertakes and agrees with "the Corporation" to supply to all applicants of financial standing within the Town of Napanee, on the streets on which its lines are erected and within 250 feet of same, or to a further distance up to within 400 feet of its lines, if so ordered by the Council of "the Corporation," electric energy for the purpose of lighting at a rate of ten cents per kilowatt hour, with a discount of twenty per cent, if accounts are paid within ten days from the date of invoice for the preceding month's supply, and for which purpose such date shall be determined by the date of delivering at the residence of such user, or by the day after it is deposited in the post office at Napanee, addressed to said user, for the amount of the invoice indicated thereon for previous supply.

The inhabitants referred to so using said electric energy for lighting a residence shall have the option instead of adopting the foregoing rate, of demanding a rate based on a net rate of ten cents per month for each room in his residence; with the addition of a rate of three cents per kilowatt hour. In arriving at the number of rooms in said house, cellars, hall, bathrooms, closets, store-ments and repairs as may be deemed necessary under the conditions hereinafter set out.

8. "The Company" shall erect the poles, crossarms, guys, braces, wires and light appliances on the streets and highways at their own expense and to the satisfaction of the party who may be indicated by the Council of "the Corporation," and any poles hereafter erected on Dundas street between Adelphi street and West street shall be of cement or iron, and shall own and be responsible for the plant, the material and the current to the point on the outside wall of the customer's building where "the Company's" wires enter the said building. "The Company" shall see that outside equipment, when installed, shall be in each and every case properly insulated and otherwise protected according to the latest then known practices. The wiring inside for such buildings shall also be properly insulated and otherwise protected in like manner by the consumer in all cases, to the entire satisfaction of the Inspector of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association, and "the Company" shall not be obliged or compelled to attach or turn on electric current until the above conditions are fully complied with; and "the Company" shall not, at any time, or in any event, be responsible for the wires or appliances used by the consumer or for the current or any action thereof after delivery to the consumer.

9. "The Company" shall also during the term of this Agreement keep and maintain as many electric arc lights of 500 watt capacity as the Municipality may, from time to time, require, which said arc lights are to be placed as shown in the schedule hereto annexed unless changed as hereinafter provided for, and any additional arc lights to be located by the standing Committee of Fire, Water and Light, of the Town of Napanee, or such other Committee as may, from time to time, have charge of the street lighting on the streets, squares, lanes, parks and highways in the Town of Napanee and which said arc electric lamps are to be of the best and most approved kind used in the Series Arc Electric System, and the said "Company" shall also during all the term of this Agreement erect, keep and maintain as many incandescent electric lamps of at least sixty (60) candle power as "the Corporation" may from time to time require, which said incandescent lamps are to be located, as shown in said schedule, unless changed as hereinafter provided for, on the public streets, squares, lanes, parks and highways in the Town of Napanee, which said incandescent electric lamps are to be of the best and most approved kind used in the Series Incandescent Electric Light System.

10. "The Company" shall and will also at all times during the continuance in force of this Agreement upon being required so to do by "the Corporation" through its Council, at "the Company's" cost and expense, erect, place and put up and maintain any further or additional number of electric lamps, either arc or incandescent, of equal quality and description on any of the streets, squares, lanes, parks and highways in the said town of Napanee as "the Corporation" through its Council, may from time to time designate for the purpose of extending such electric light each and every incandescent electric lamp as soon as it has noticeably depreciated below sixty candle power.

The lamps shall burn each night, approximately from sunset to sunrise.

14. If a lamp or lamps be extinguished or not lighted during a portion of any night exceeding thirty consecutive minutes "the Corporation" shall be entitled to a rebate of the actual time the lamp or lamps are out over thirty minutes of the amount "the Company" would be entitled for said lamp or lamps if it, or they, had been burning.

15. "The Company" shall maintain at its own expense an efficient system of patrol for inspecting the entire street lighting system, while the lamps are burning, at least twice a week, so that any lamp which fails to burn properly shall be promptly reported, and put in order, or immediately replaced. It is understood by "the Company" that the utmost diligence shall be used in order that its consumers shall be efficiently served.

16. Lamps not burning in a manner satisfactory to "the Corporation" shall be repaired or proper lamps substituted within eighteen hours after notice has been given by "the Corporation," or by the Clerk thereof, that the lamp or lamps referred to does, or do not, burn satisfactorily.

17. "The Corporation" shall keep on file at the office of its Clerk a blueprint or map of the streets and blocks of the town to be furnished by "the Company," and "the Company" shall mark thereon in a manner satisfactory to the said Clerk, the geographical location of each and every lamp, and in the event of the location of any lamp or lamps being changed, or new lamps being added, "the Company" shall within five days of such changes or additions mark the new location of such lamp or lamps.

18. All safety appliances adopted by the best modern electrical practices shall be used throughout the system authorized directly or indirectly by this Agreement, and any improvement so adopted in lamp fixtures shall be made known to the Clerk or "the Corporation" and if then required by "the Corporation" through its Council, shall forthwith be supplied by "the Company" at the expense of said "Company."

19. Changes of location of lamps must be made by "the Company" within thirty days after the receipt of the notice from "the Corporation," and the actual cost only of the labor and material in making change shall be charged to "the Corporation." "The Corporation" reserves the right at any time to discontinue any lamp or lamps, as it may deem expedient; provided, however, that the number of lamps contracted for under this Agreement shall not be diminished during the continuance of this Agreement to a number less than the equivalent of thirty arc and thirty incandescent lights, provided that if any lamp shall be discontinued before it has been in use one year "the Company" shall be entitled to be paid rent to the end of one year from the time of its having been first installed and used, unless ordered for a shorter time, when special arrangements may be made.

tree upon the streets within the town limits except under the supervision, and with the consent, of some person to be appointed by "the Corporation," through its Council, for the purpose, and it shall not erect its poles or string its wires so as to damage any tree in the limits aforesaid, except with the consent of the aforesaid person.

21. "The Corporation," through its proper officers, shall, upon being satisfied as to the correctness thereof, certify the accounts of "the Company," for all services performed by "the Company" in each preceding month, and the accounts so certified after being approved by the said officers shall duly be paid by the Treasurer of "the Corporation" not later than the fifteenth day of the month following that in which the services are rendered.

22. The poles, wires, conductors, and every article, appliance and apparatus which may be necessary for electric energy, are to be furnished and maintained by "the Company" at its own cost and expense, and the lamps, wires and other conductors shall be thoroughly insulated and "the Corporation" shall not be held responsible for any injury or accident which may be occasioned by the poles, wires, conductors or electric current. "The Company" hereby further agrees that it will indemnify and save harmless "the Corporation," its officers, agents and servants, and each and every one of them against and from all suits and actions of every nature and description brought against any of them, and against and from all damages and costs to which it, they or any of them may be put by reason of injury to the person or property of another, resulting from any improper or defective material, machinery, implement, appliances, or from any placing of poles, wires or other appliance used in performing this Agreement, or from any act of omission or commission claimed against "the Corporation" or "the Company," or the officers, servants or agents of each, in connection with matters involved under this Agreement or performing the services contemplated hereunder.

23. No rights or privileges to erect poles, wires or other appliances are conferred by this Agreement other than those required for the fulfillment hereof.

24. In case of a fire within the limits of "the Corporation," "the Company" shall have a man on the scene forthwith and within a reasonable time after the alarm has been given, who will cut or remove such lines or wires as may interfere with the work of the firemen, and as to this the Captain of the Fire Brigade shall be the sole judge. In case the man representing "the Company," as aforesaid, is not at the scene of the fire within the time mentioned the Captain of the Fire Brigade, or person in charge of the Brigade at the time, may remove or cut the wires, or may direct the same at his or their own risk, and it shall be the duty of "the Company" as soon as possible thereafter to render harmless the wires and lines and to restore them at once after the exigencies which caused their removal have ceased to exist, without expense to "the Corporation"; provided no rebate shall be asked for, or deducted, by "the Corporation" for any lights which may be extinguished by such contingencies.

temined by a Judge of the County Court of the County of Lennox and Addington whose decision shall be final thereon, and in the event of cancellation "the Company" shall forthwith remove all its poles, wires, and other appliances which are used in connection with electric lighting and furnishing heat and power as defined in this Agreement which are within the limits of the Town, to points outside the limits of the said Town.

31. "The Company" further covenants and agrees to furnish power, if desired, up to the extent of 1000 horse power by January 1st, 1912, for use in the said Corporation, and that the maximum charge for electric energy supplied under contract for power to customers in the said "Corporation" shall not exceed $25.00 per annum per horse power for a twenty-four hour service or at the option of the purchaser a stand by charge of Twelve Dollars per horse power per annum of connected load plus a meter rate of one cent per horse power hour.

32. And "the Company" further covenants and agrees that the service it will give for light, heat and power shall be continuous for twenty-four hours daily.

33. "The Company" further agrees that if the prices charged by it for electric lighting, heating and power shall, at the end of any three years, after it has commenced to distribute electric lighting in the said "Corporation," be unsatisfactory to the said "Corporation," or the citizens thereof, that it will upon six months' notice in writing from the Municipal Council of the said "Corporation" submit the question of the rates charged to the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada.

34. It is further agreed by and between "the Corporation" and "the Company" that "the Corporation" shall have the right, power and privilege at any time after the expiration of ten years from the date of completion of the purchase of "the Property," under this Agreement, upon giving three months' notice in writing of their intention so to do, to "the Company," their successors or assigns, to purchase all "the Property," as it then exists, except that portion of the distributing system used by "the Company" to supply electric energy to consumers using twenty horse power or over, and in case of purchase "the Company" agrees to allow "the Corporation" to use any of its poles for stringing of the wires of "the Corporation's" system, on condition that "the Corporation" do pay to "the Company" annually for the use of such poles, the same amount as is charged for taxes against said poles so used, and "the Company's" wires thereon.

35. In the event of "the Corporation" taking over the distributing system as aforesaid at the end of ten years, or any time thereafter, within thirty years of the date of the transfer of "the Property," "the Company" shall have the right to use the streets and highways of "the Corporation" under the conditions of this contract where then applicable for the purpose of supplying electric energy to consumers using twenty horse power or over at the rates hereinbefore provided until the termination of thirty years from said date, but in no event shall said energy be used for lighting in any premises other the day and year first above written.

UNJUST AND CRUEL WILLS

CURIOUS CLAUSES WHICH THEY CONTAIN.

Mr. Scott Willed That His Money Was To Be Turned Into Bank Notes and Burned.

In September, 1903, occurred a most mysterious crime. In the wild hills at the back of New York State, known as the Adirondacks, a young man named Orlando Dexter, son of the millionaire founder of the American News Company, was found foully murdered, says Pearson's Weekly.

The case created an enormous sensation, and the police of the whole country united in the attempt to discover the assassin. But not even the slightest clue was found, and to this day the circumstances of the crime remain a mystery. Mr. Henry Dexter very nearly went insane from grief, and sorrow, no doubt, shortened his life. He died, and set aside a sum of $10,000 as a reward to any person who will obtain the arrest and conviction of the murderer of his son.

Wills are usually as deadly dull as most other legal documents, but now and then a spice of interest is lent by the curious clauses which they contain, especially those which carry out posthumous grudges.

GUILTY OF ARSON.

Sometimes a will of this sort leaves its executor in a curious dilemma. A case in point is the last testament of Mr. Harvey Scott, who died a few years ago at the age of eighty-two. In order to prevent his heirs, three relatives whom he disliked, from getting his property, he had given directions that the sum which he left—some $25,000—should be turned into bank notes and publicly burned. The executor appealed to the Courts to be relieved of his task. He quaintly remarked that, if he obeyed the will, he considered that he would be guilty of arson.

A maiden lady of a sarcastic turn of mind, Miss Mary Marchant by name, left "to her dear doctor" a box and all its contents. When the physician got his legacy home and opened it, imagine his feelings at discovering that it contained all the pills and potions which he had prescribed for his late patient in the course of some twenty years' attendance!

HOW A CHAPEL LOST $4,500

Another wealthy old maid who lived in Vienna, was pestered for years by requests from her three nephews and three nieces that she would give them portions to enable them to marry. At last she died. When her will was read it was found that about a million dollars was divided among the six on condition that the nephews should not marry before forty, and the nieces not before thirty. What was more, they were all five to live in the same house, under the care of the executor, who was to receive a handsome salary for seeing that the legatees obeyed the conditions.

The deacons of a Baptist chapel in Cheltenham got a nasty shock when they heard the contents of the will of one of the chapel trustees.

the Corporation"; provided no rebate shall be asked for, or deducted, by "the Corporation" for any lights which may be extinguished by such contingencies.

25. "The Company" shall not be obliged to erect or remove poles or posts between the fifteenth day of November and the fifteenth day of April following, during the continuance of this Agreement.

26. "The said Corporation" shall, and will, pay to the said "Company," for each electric arc light so lighted, on the public streets, squares, lanes, parks and highways, in the Town of Napanee, for the full number of nights as hereinbefore provided, the sum of $35 per year, payable monthly as hereinbefore mentioned, during the continuance in force of this Agreement. And the said "Corporation" shall, and will, pay to the said "Company" for each incandescent electric light so lighted on the public streets, squares, lanes and highways in the Town of Napanee for the full number of nights as hereinbefore provided, the sum of $15.00 per year, payable monthly, as hereinbefore mentioned, during the continuance of this Agreement, provided, however, that the above incandescent lights do not include those lights in the Band Stand, Harvey Warner Park, and in front of Town Hall, Fire Hall and Library, which are to be paid for at the meter rate, and provided further that the "Corporation" shall pay $2.00 per annum for each of the four-candle power lights at the fire alarm boxes.

27. This Agreement in so far as it requires "the Company" to furnish lights for the streets and other public places shall commence and continue in force for a period of ten years from the date of the transfer of "the Property" to "the Company," with right of renewal for another ten years if desired by "the Corporation," and a further right of renewal at the end of that term if "the Corporation" desires. The desire of "the Corporation" to extend this Agreement as above shall be signified by its giving to "the Company" six months' notice in writing of its intention so to do.

28. "The Company" is to have free access at all reasonable times to the premises on which the current is used, to read meters or to determine if the current is being carried, distributed and used in a proper or improper manner, or for the purpose connected with this Agreement.

29. "The Corporation" is not to be permitted to use the current furnished to it for any purpose or in any place other than is provided for in this Agreement, except for its own use, without having first obtained the written consent of "the Company."

30. It is further, agreed that if "the Company" shall fail to carry out this Agreement and is in default in the aggregate for a period of three months out of any twelve months, except such default shall be occasioned by fire, water, rebellion, flood, the acts of God, of the King, or the enemies of the King, or other cause or causes of a like nature, "the Corporation" shall, in addition to its claim for damages, if any, have the right to cancel this Agreement. If "the Corporation" claims the right to cancel this Agreement under this clause, and "the Company" denies its right, the question whether "the Corporation" has the right to cancel this Agreement shall be determined by the arbitrator, or over at the rates hereinbefore provided until the termination of thirty years from said date, but in no event shall said energy be used for lighting in any premises other than those in which the said energy is also used for power purposes.

36. And it is hereby provided that in case "the Corporation" and "the Company," their successors or assigns, cannot agree upon the said value or price to be paid, for that portion "the Property" so to be purchased under Section 34, the same shall be ascertained by arbitration under the provisions of the "Arbitration" Act.

37. "The Company" will maintain the said power house as now existing and under operation in condition for immediate service, from the date of completion of purchase until such time as it may be permitted by resolution of the Council of "the Corporation" by a two-thirds vote of the whole Council at a regular meeting thereof, to dismantle and dispose of the same.

38. Nothing in this contract shall be construed to give "the Company" an exclusive franchise or exclusive use of the streets for the purpose of supplying electric energy for light, heat and power.

39. If this Agreement and the franchise hereby given be continued in "the Company" for the period referred to of full thirty years, at the expiration of said period "the Company" shall remove all its poles, wires and other appliances which are used in connection with electric lighting and furnishing heat and power as defined in this Agreement, which are within the limits of the town, to points entirely outside of the limits of said town.

40. It is further agreed that the expression "financial standing," used in paragraph number 6 hereof, shall be satisfied in the case of any person applying for electric light who will pay for the connection with his premises if anything is due for the same hereunder, and will pay in advance the sum of five dollars as a guarantee to "the Company" for the payment of its accounts, said sum of five dollars to be returned to such person at the end of twelve months after such payment if all accounts against him to said time are duly paid.

41. "The Company" agree to give to "the Corporation," within thirty days after the third reading of the By-law confirming this Agreement, the bond of the Electric Power Company, Limited, in the sum of $5,000.00 for the due execution by "the Company" of all the terms of this Agreement.

42. "The Corporation" will submit to the electors of "the Corporation" a by-law founded on this Agreement, within forty days after the day of the execution hereof by "the Company," and in the event of the same not receiving the assent of the electors in manner prescribed by law, this Agreement shall not be binding on either party to same.

43. Wherever, used throughout this Agreement, the words "the Company" shall be deemed to extend to the successors and assigns of the party of the second part.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the parties hereto have hereunto set their corporate seals, and have caused these presents to be signed by their respective proper officers

SUPERSTITIOUS JAPANESE.

It is doubtful if any syllable in the Japanese language occurs more frequently than "shi." Yet no Jap would willingly use it in the first day of the year, or he will certainly have bad luck for the remaining three hundred and sixty-four. And in the land of Nippon most people believe in the evil power of the fox. To his evil eye is attributed all manner of ill-luck. Yet Brer Fox is supposed to be the servant and protector of Imari, one of the gods of old Japan; and more from a sense of fear than anything else, the Japs worship Imari through his guardian spirit the wily fox. Nor would a Japanese child kill a frog, for should they do so, then surely paralysis will seize them. A tea-leaf in the cup means a guest is coming, according to the Jap. The direction from which he will come is told by the position of the leaf.

AS INSTRUCTED.

"I'd like you to help me a little," said a vagrant, poking his head into a country store.

"Why don't you help yourself?" asked the proprietor.

"Thank you, I will," said the tramp, picking up a bottle of pickles and two loaves of bread, and then vanishing.

atees obeyed the conditions.

The deacons of a Baptist chapel in Cheltenham got a nasty shock when they heard the contents of the will of one of the chapel trustees, who died in December, 1908. By a codicil he left $500 to the chapel funds for each deacon who attended his funeral. There were nine deacons, but not one of them attended; so instead of the $4,500 by which the chapel might have been the richer, the legacy was void.

WEALTHY BREWER'S WILL.

Malevolence and benevolence are oddly blended in the will of Herr Gottfried Feller, a wealthy brewer of Thun, Germany. He bequeathed to his native town a sum of no less than $150,000, but accompanied the bequest by the condition that a certain person whom he disliked should not be elected to the Communal Council, while another of his pet aversions was to be deprived of a certain municipal office which he held. The Council met, and after considering the will were forced to notify the executors that they could not accept the bequest.

What is probably the strangest and, at the same time, the most horrible bequest ever made, is to be found in the will of Lieut. de Pap, formerly an officer in a smart regiment of Austrian hussars, who was executed by strangling some few years ago for the murder of his brother.

Previous to his execution, the murderer requested that he might be photographed whilst hanging on the gallows, and a copy of the ghastly picture sent to his father, a Protestant clergyman, whose severity, he declared, was responsible for the bad courses into which he, his son, had fallen.

So many wills contain unjust and cruel clauses that an agitation is at present on foot to secure a new Act of Parliament which shall lay down that no child shall be wholly disinherited except for an adequate reason. A law of this kind is already in force in France.

PROOF AT LAST.

During some recent manoeuvres a private had his skull badly injured. The doctor told him that the brain was exposed.

"My brains exposed?" the injured one cried in surprise.

"Yes, my man!" replied the doctor.

"Please, doctor, do write and tell my father about them," said the private, "he always swore I had none!"

PLEASURES OF LIFE.

He made his wife keep a cash account. Every week he would go over it, growling and grumbling, like this:—"Look here, Hannah! mustard plasters, a shilling; three teeth extracted, ten shillings. There's eleven shillings in one week spent for your private pleasure. Do you think I'm made of money?"

COMFORT IN THAT.

"Ain't yer vaccination healed up yet?" asked Jimmy.

"Naw," replied Tommy.

"Gee! don't it make yer feel bad?"

"Naw; the doctor told mom I mustn't take a bath till it's all healed up."

TO HELP FRUIT-GROWING

An Investigation to be Conducted by Experts

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Minister of Agriculture has authorized a special inquiry to be made into the fruit-growing industry of Canada, under the direction of Mr. J. A. Ruddick, dairy and cold-storage Commissioner. The well-known fruit-grower, Mr. W. H. Bunting of St. Catharines, has been engaged to conduct the inquiry. He will be assisted by the Federal officials and by the local officials of the different Provinces and districts. His report will be available for the Dominion conference of fruit-growers, that is to be held at Ottawa some time next winter. The investigation will be conducted with a view of securing some reliable data respecting the area and extent of land adapted to fruit-growing in the various Provinces, varieties of fruits which have been found to be most profitable and successful in the several Provinces or subdivisions of the same, general trend of the industry towards concentrating the production of large quantities of standard varieties, difficulties which are likely to be encountered, methods of production, facilities for distribution and marketing, possibilities of over-production, etc.

WILL BE BUILT IN CANADA

Ships for Canadian Navy to be Constructed Here

A despatch from Ottawa says: It is stated that the contract for the construction of the ships of the Canadian navy has been definitely awarded to the British-Canadian Shipbuilding and Dock Company, which has its headquarters at Sydney, Nova Scotia. The company includes among its directors: Sir Henry Pellatt, of Toronto; Hon. J. M. Gibson, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario; and Sir Charles Ellis, chairman of the John Brown Company, of Clyde Bank, Scotland, which constructed the Lusitania and the Mauretania, and who is prominent in British shipbuilding circles. The plans for the company's plant at Sydney are now well under way and will shortly be submitted to the Government for approval. They call for an expenditure of $6,000,000 and include the placing in position of a dry-dock, which will be one of the largest in the world, its length being put at 1,040 feet and its width at 110 feet. It is hoped to have the plant in operation within two years and to have the naval ships well advanced towards completion inside of five years.

PICTON MAN DROWNED.

Body of Wm. Welsh Found in Canal at Rochester.

A despatch from Rochester says: The body of William Welsh, 50 years old, was found floating in the Erie Canal. Welsh was a bricklayer, and came here from Picton, Ontario, where relatives reside. His wife became insane a few years ago, and was committed to the Rochester State Hospital. Since that time Welsh worked here and in Syracuse. He came here from Syracuse a month ago. The remains were decomposed, which indicated that he had fallen into the water at least four days ago.

A PHENOMENAL GROWTH

Dominion Customs Receipts for Three Months Amounted to $29,239,646

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Dominion financial estimate for the first quarter of the current fiscal year just issued shows the continued growth of revenue. For the three months ended June 30 the Customs revenue was $2,599,000 in excess of the receipts for the first quarter of 1910-11. This rate, if continued, would mean an increase of $10,000,000 for the fiscal year, which would bring the Customs receipts up to the phenomenal figure of $30,000,000 for the twelve months. The total revenue for the three months ended June 30 amounted to $29,239,646, an increase of $2,904,793 over the first quarter of last year. Expenditure on consolidated fund account was $5,253,732, an increase of $102,025. Capital expenditure is returned at $2,303,730, a decrease of $814,205. For the month of June the revenue amounted to $10,000,205, an increase of $1,033,528 over June, 1910. Expenditure on account of consolidated fund, was $5,165,911, an increase of $92,115. Capital expenditure for the month was $1,115,575, an increase of $163,246.

REVOLT IN LISBON CITY

Fierce Fighting by Seamen Quartered in Barracks

A despatch from London says: A great fight has taken place between the populace and the seamen quartered in the barracks in Lisbon. The seamen, incited by Monarchist agitators, attempted to raise an armed revolt. Revolvers and knives were used with deadly effect. The Government called out all available troops, both cavalry and infantry, and after severe fighting managed to quell the riot and restore order. The city is in a state of panic, according to the despatches, and elaborate precautions are being taken by the authorities to suppress any further revolutionary movement. The Government is informed that the leader of the Monarchists has recently received another important addition to his funds in the shape of a remittance of $410,000 from Brazil.

IMPORTATION OF CATTLE.

Has Been Prohibited During the Foot and Mouth Disease.

A despatch from Ottawa says: A cable received on Wednesday evening from the British Board of Agriculture through the High Commissioner announces an outbreak of foot and mouth disease at Hounslow, Middlesex, England. Thirty-one pigs and one head of cattle are affected. A ministerial order was passed at once by the Dominion Government, cancelling all permits for the importation from England of cattle, sheep, swine or other ruminants, other than those actually, at this date, embarked on board vessels bound for Canada. This will effectually prevent the importation of animals of the above classes till after the disease is stamped out. Horses are not affected by the order. The different steamship companies have been notified by telegraph of the prohibitory order.

TO HANDLE THE CROPS.

Small Army of Help Expected From Great Britain.

A despatch from Winnipeg, Man., says: The three transcontinental systems are making elaborate plans to handle the crop and to supply men for the harvest. The Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific have already taken steps to bring a small army from Great Britain and the early arrivals are expected from the East in a few days' time. The Canadian Pacific Railway is looking to the south for the men, and special excursions have been arranged. Already many applications are being received for harvest hands, and, although the demand will be very heavy, it is expected that the railroads will be able to prevent a shortage.

NEW GRAND TRUNK HOTEL WILL BE OPEN

TOO WEAK FOR ENGINES.

Alarming Condition of Seven British Destroyers.

A despatch from London says: Seven of Great Britain's newest ocean-going torpedo-boat destroyers have been put out of action by overstraining their hulls while under full speed trials in the heavy sea of the English Channel. The destroyers Acorn, Alarm, Rifleman, Nemesis, Lyra, Nymph and Larne reached Portland in such a leaky condition that all available divers were requisitioned to close the gaps in their seams before docking. The trouble was the result of the tremendous vibration of the powerful engines driving the little warships at a speed of 28 knots through the rough water. The rivets of the plates were started in all directions, opening gaps which caused the water to pour into the oil bunkers and rendering the fuel useless.

GOVERNMENT ANNUITIES.

More Than a Million Dollars Already Invested.

A despatch from Ottawa says: As a medium for safe investment and for provision for old age, Government annuities are steadily growing in favor. According to latest reports there are now over 2,100 annuitants from all parts of the Dominion investing their savings with the Government, and the total amount received from the annuitants is now nearly one and a quarter million dollars.

BLOODLESS REVOLUTION.

President of Paraguay Made a Prisoner and Resigned.

A despatch from Buenos Ayres says: The local newspapers report another bloodless revolution in Paraguay. The garrison at Asuncion revolted and made a prisoner of President Jara, who forthwith resigned. Congress then selected Liberato Rojas, President of the Senate, for provisional President pending new elections.

GENERAL.

Dock hands at Glasgow are again on strike.

Dr. Johnstone Storey, scientist and astronomer, is dead in London, aged 85.

Fifteen hundred employees of the international Harvester Works at Moscow are on strike.

One man was killed and a woman fatally injured in street car riots in Mexico city last night.

London police, cavalry and infantry have been sent to Manchester, where striking carters have been mauling the local police.

Seven thousand Montenegrin troops have been massed on the border, but King Nicholas professes to be quite peacefully inclined.

The British Government has postponed until to-morrow the promised statement concerning the Moroccan situation. Meanwhile Germany is sending a modern warship to replace the gunboat "Panther" at Agadir.

BAD MONEY.

Look Out for Bogus Bills Throughout Ontario.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Inspector Parkinson, of the Dominion police, has been in Lindsay investigating the circulation of bogus money, and may have to go back.

A man named Watt was arrested in Orillia and convicted in connection with the prevalence of bad money, but some of the green goods is said to be in circulation in Lindsay, and other arrests may follow. Uxbridge, too, has had some of the stage cash.

A lot of bad money appears to have been turned out in Ontario recently and the Dominion police are investigating in several localities.

PROVINCE GETS $118,190.

Father of Senator Fulford's Grandson Receives Fortune.

A despatch from Toronto says: The Provincial Treasurer's Department received a cheque for $118,190 in succession dues upon the estate of George MacLean, the infant son of Martha MacLean, daughter of the late Senator Fulford. The late Senator willed one-third of his estate to his daughter's child. This amounted to $2,204,000. The mother died shortly after the child's birth, and the baby died two hours later. The father, George MacLean, of Brockville, becomes heir to the child's fortune.

CAUGHT IN MACHINERY.

Engineer's Leg Cut Off to Release Him.

A despatch from Montreal says: The steamer Jeanne D'Arc, running between Lachine and Caughnawaga, crowded with passenger Sunday, was the scene of a panic which took all the ability of the officers to quell. Just as the vessel was in the speediest part of the current screams were heard from the engine-room, and the vessel began to turn broadside on. The engineer, Louis Drolet, was caught by the foot in the machinery, and was being terribly mangled. Hearing the screams two men passing in a motor boat clambered aboard and pushed their way through the crowd. Seizing a knife one of them saved Drolet from being pulled farther into the machinery by hacking off his foot and part of his leg. After much difficulty the engines were set to work again and the vessel brought safely to shore.

STEERED CREWLESS BOAT.

Craft Invented to be Operated by Wireless.

A despatch from Berlin says: Experiments which have been going on for several days with a rudderless, crewless motorboat on the Wannsee, about twelve miles north of Berlin, have proved remarkably successful.

The boat was towed out two miles in the lake and her movements afterward directed altogether by means of wireless apparatus ashore. The boat threaded her way unerringly through numerous craft without the slightest accident.

The inventor of the crewless boat is a school teacher named Christian Wirth.

FORGED SUPT. ROGERS' NAME

Head of Provincial Police Victim of a Check Artist.

A despatch from Toronto says: The bogus check artists are busy these hot days, and they have victimized even Superintendent of Provincial Police J. E. Rogers. A few days ago the proprietor of the New American Hotel, Hamilton, called up Mr. Rogers and said a check for $50, supposedly signed by Mr. Rogers, had been cashed for $33 by one of the hotelmen. The drawer represented himself as of the detective department, and the check was drawn on the Hamilton branch of the Bank of Montreal.

A crop of complaints regarding spurious checks has been received recently at the Provincial detective office, and an official warning has been issued.

FIRE AT WINNIPEG FAIR

Grand Stand Destroyed and Buildings Badly Damaged

A despatch from Winnipeg, Man., says: Fire of a mysterious origin destroyed the grand-stand at the Winnipeg Exhibition grounds on Thursday night. The racing stables caught fire, and were saved by the firemen. The scenic and arts building, recently constructed, also caught fire. Never before has Winnipeg seen such a spectacular fire, and it was the first time on record that each one of the eleven halls has attended a blaze. Flames could be seen from all parts of the city, and that all the buildings on the grounds were not reduced to a heap of ashes is considered miraculous. The loss is estimated at $70,000, which is partially covered by insurance in a number of insurance companies.

Every man in the employment of the city will be put to work on the exhibition grounds, for the association is determined to have at least a temporary grand stand for the annual fair.

While the fire was still burning a meeting of the directors of the Industrial Exhibition Association was held in one of the adjacent buildings, the Mayor and Aldermen of the city being present. The outcome of their joint deliberations was that the grand stand would be rebuilt immediately. The Engineer of construction and the Street Commissioners Department put a thousand men at work clearing the ground of debris, and five hundred carpenters got busy on the new structure, so that the exhibition was only delayed one day. It was announced by the directors that the opening day of the exhibition would be July 13, instead of July 12.

SURE CURE.

The boy's eyes were closed, and all attempts to rouse him were ineffectual. The physician had watched by the bedside for half an hour without success, and finally announced that the only hope of saving his life was to rouse him from his stupor.

"Cannot some of you induce him to make some exertion?" he asked. "We can do nothing unless we can make him do something for himself."

Then the boy's mother went to the bedside and pleaded with him to rouse himself for her sake, but there was not even a motion of the muscles of the face to show that he heard. She told him how much she would do for him, and what nice times they would have when he got well, but he did not stir.

The father spoke of buying him a pony and a little shot-gun, but he did not seem to understand. Even the mention of a circus and a cinema show passed unheeded, and he gave up in despair.

Then the sick boy's little brother crept to the bedside, and said, softly:—

"Eddie, the people who lived in

WRONG SORT.

Perhaps Plain Old Meat, Potatoes and Bread may Be Against You for a Time.

A change to the right kind of food can lift one from a sick bed. A lady in Welden, Ill., says:

"Last spring I became bed-fast with severe stomach trouble accompanied by sick headache. I got worse and worse until I became so low I could scarcely retain any food at all, although I tried about every kind.

"I had become completely discouraged, and given up all hope and thought I was doomed to starve to death, until one day my husband, trying to find something I could retain, brought home some Grape-Nuts.

"To my surprise the food agreed with me, digested perfectly and without distress. I began to gain strength at once. My flesh (which had been flabby) grew firmer, my health improved in every way and every day, and in a very few weeks I gained 20 pounds in weight.

"I liked Grape-Nuts so well that for four months I ate no other food, and always felt as well satisfied."

Five Children Suffocated While at Play in Russia.

A despatch from Moscow says: Five children have lost their lives in a most tragic manner at Poborskanka, in the Akkerman district. They were playing at home in the absence of their parents and climbed into a large iron safe with a massive lid, which was held up by a prop of wood. One of the children must have accidentally knocked the prop away, for the lid fell, and owing to the automatic catch, became immovable from the inside.

The parents on their return were alarmed at the disappearance of the children, and searched for them in every likely place, but in vain. It was only after a long delay that they thought of the safe.

SMALLPOX IN MANITOBA.

Nineteen Cases Reported and Passenger Traffic Stopped.

A despatch from Winnipeg, Man., says: Alarming smallpox conditions have broken out in the eastern part of this province. Nineteen cases are reported at Port Alexander, on the Winnipeg River. There are other cases near Mapleton, in the Selkirk district. Dr. Grain, M.L.A., Provincial Health Officer, has prohibited all passenger traffic to or from Lac du Bonnet and Point du Bois, where the outbreak originated.

BEER SALES INCREASE.

No Less Than 63,000,000 Barrels Sold Last Year.

A despatch from New York says: No less than 63,000,000 barrels of beer were sold in the United States during the 12 months ending June 30 last, or an increase over the previous 12 months of 6.21 per cent., according to the annual report of the beer and whiskey sales made public here to-day by the United States Brewers Association.

The country north of Brockville was swept by a tornado that did a lot of damage.

JUST ESCAPED LANDSLIDE.

Passengers on Two Cars on Falls Railway Had a Close Call.

A despatch from Niagara Falls, Ont., says: There was a small landslide Sunday morning about ten o'clock, when some fifty ton of earth and rock fell down the bank near the Devil's Hole. A carload of Shriners had just passed and another car partially filled was just approaching where the rock fell. There was no damage excepting that the track was blocked a short time.

TWO BOYS DROWNED.

Tragedy in Nova Scotia—One Attempted to Rescue the Other.

A despatch from Parrsboro, N. S., says: A double drowning occurred near Partridge Island Sunday afternoon. Two boys, one the only son of Clifford Gilbert, the other the eldest son of his brother, Jas. C. Gilbert, were bathing in a swimming hole, when one of them got beyond his depth, and the other went to his assistance and was drawn into deep water. The boys were each about 12 years of age.

BOY TRAMPLED TO DEATH.

Accident at Fire Hall Fatal in Toronto.

A despatch from Toronto says: Eddie Harvie, a boy of about thirteen years, was killed at the Howland avenue fire hall on Thursday morning by one of the horses trampling on him.

The horse was being washed outside the stable door, and breaking the strap by which he was tethered, ran down the side passage while young Harvie was coming along.

The boy was knocked down, and being carried into the station died in a few minutes. Drs. McNab and Wilson were summoned at once, but could do nothing to save his life.

The death list from heat in Toronto reached fifty-eight. Shareholders of the defunct Farmers Bank are again asked to hope on as the Keelev Mine is to be worked in their interests.

Even the mention of a circus and a cinema show passed unheeded, and he gave up in despair.

Then the sick boy's little brother crept to the bedside, and said, softly—

"Eddie, the people who lived in that big house up the avenue, with a lot of windows and the greenhouse, have moved, and the place is empty."

The eyes slowly closed, and the little brother went on, exultantly:

"All the boys are going to be Monday to slip some time through the windows."

"Who gets first crack at 'em?" asked the sick boy, feebly.

"You do," replied the little brother. "The boys gives you first shy 'cause you can throw straighter than any of 'em."

"January!" I heard the people as crows that hoars, and the loved boy, too, was in bed. "My" what we had fun, though! "He'll live," cried the doctor, joyfully, and the little brother was taken out and feasted on sweets and tarts until he was well, high ill.

Don't expect to land where you expect when you jump at a conclusion.

HOW THE MAINE WAS SUNK

Gen. William H. Bixby Says the Explosion Was Internal

A despatch from Washington says: The loss of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor was caused by the explosion of her three magazines. No such effect as that produced upon the vessel could have been caused by an explosion from without.

Such is the opinion of General Wm. H. Bixby, chief of engineers, U.S.A., who has returned from a personal inspection of the work of raising the Maine.

General Bixby said that a portion of the deck over the magazines was blown upward and laid backward, and there were numerous conditions of the hull as it lies in Havana harbor which proved this. No explosion from the outside, said the General, could have caused the same results.

"What the primary cause of the explosion was," said General Bixby, "never will be learned."

General Bixby does not believe that the bodies of those who lost their lives will be found on the wreck in the mud.

WHY NOT TAKE THE CHANCE?

Mr. McKay Thought Conservatives Lost Their Hand at a Game.

Speaking at Wingham, Hon. A. G. MacKay said that if the Conservatives were so sure reciprocity would be a bad thing, why did they not go on record against it, let it pass, and, after a year's trial, have the dissatisfied people turn the Liberals out? During the first five months of this year 625 cars of hay had been exported to the United States from Ontario north of Stratford. At twenty tons to the car and $4 a ton duty, that was $50,000 lost in duty. He closed with the reply to the annexation bogey, and urged the electors to vote against the Conservative candidate, who had forgotten them when he had voted against reciprocity.

SIR JOHN A. WANTED IT

The Late Conservative Chieftain Had Gone on Record on Reciprocity.

So strongly had Sir John A. Macdonald felt upon the question of reciprocity, said S. H. McKay, speaking at Braddon, that he had left it on statutory record that as soon as the United States was willing to enter into a reciprocal agreement Canada would be prepared to do the same. For several years Canadians had enjoyed bonding privileges in the United States and reciprocity was after all only an extension of that principle.

Their opponents claimed that the Laurier Government had received no mandate to ratify the agreement. Surely the Canadian farmers' delegation to Ottawa formed a mandate. But apart from that mandate, reciprocity had been so thoroughly endorsed by both parties that no further mandate was necessary.

SCANDAL AND SHAME

Mr. Fielding Thus Refers to the Talk About Annexation.

"Annexation!" said Hon. W. S. Fielding. "Is it not a scandal and a shame that our opponents should talk annexation? I would not know—I do not know whether you do or not—I would not know where to look in the whole Dominion of Canada for a man who would call himself an annexationist. What can you say if our American friends receive an erroneous impression when they read that the men who are supporting this Reciprocity agreement in Canada are advocating annexation in disguise, and when they know that thousands and hundreds of thousands of people in Canada are supporting this Reciprocity agreement? Can you be surprised if our American friends are taught to believe that there is disloyalty in Canada. Who teaches them?"

A Story of Daniel Drew.

When Sir Morton Peto visited this country with a large assortment of railroad schemes in his head he gave a grand dinner, at which old Daniel Drew was present. When the company were in good humor Sir Morton developed his plans in detail and did it very plausibly. Drew listened to the end and then, turning to the gentleman sitting next to him, remarked, "We ain't goin' to do none o' them 'ere things." That ended it.

Comments of Some of Our Exchanges.

Victoria Colonist.

Six hundred and sixty thousand persons attended the Festival of Empire in London in one day, and there was no accident or disturbance of any kind. Truly the British people understand self-government.

Monoton Transcript.

Even the promoters of the bread trust can quote Scripture for their purpose. They are telling the bakers to cast their bread upon the waters of the merger and it will return to them after many days in the form of dividends obtained by soaking the long-suffering consumer.

London Free Press.

The law which holds the man who strikes another, except in self-defence, responsible, is strongly asserting itself and has behind it a vigorous public opinion. The principle of arbitration between individuals, as between nations, is superseding the idea of recourse to arms.

Kingston Whig.

Mr. Borden has been praised because of his consistency in the reciprocity question. He has not wobbled in his opposition. Which is truly wonderful. He has changed on so many subjects that another change would not be surprising. He was a Liberal once, and endorsed reciprocity as a matter of form. But that was a long time ago.

Halifax Echo.

Already old age has gone quite out of fashion. The civilized, educated man or woman of 70 is younger than the savage of 40 or the peasant of 50. What with steady spread of regular vacations and country or suburban homes and walking clubs and golf and gardens and automobilism and travel of all sorts, those who would have been considered old once are now only 70 or 75 years young.

Halifax Chronicle.

Let us keep pure and sweet the stream of our national life. Let us resolve, in so far as personal and national effort can make it, to build a nation which will stand pre-eminently for those things which are honest and true and of good report—a great Canadian nation, knowing neither east nor west, founded upon the principles of true democracy and consecrated to the service of the whole people; a nation which will play its part worthily and well as a member of the Empire family of free self-governing communities.

Halifax Canadian Recorder.

We have here in Canada a body of Imperialists who seem to almost forget that they are Canadians, that Canada is their native land, and to whom any assertion of Canadian special interests at an Imperial gathering is little less than treason. This is not the sort of Imperialism which Canada wants. This is not the brand of Imperialism to which the Premier subscribes. The particular interests of this country must not be forgotten, minimized or neglected in any company of statesmen whatever.

THE NAME STUCK.

And yet the Man Who Owned It Didn't Feel Flattered.

They had been speaking of namesakes, and one of the group had mentioned with pride that not only were four nephews and two grandsons his namesakes, but that a business block lately built in his native town had taken its name from him.

"And I like it," he said heartily. "I consider it an honor. 'You know how I feel,' he added, turning to one of his friends. 'I hadn't been in your little town more than an hour before I saw your name at the turn of a road, 'Howard's Corner.' You must admit it's gratifying."

"May be to you," said the other man dryly, "but, as it happens, the reason that's called 'Howard's Corner' is because, when I was about twenty and knew more than I ever have since, I took the girl that I was courting out in a new top buggy with a livery stable horse and tried to show off how sharp a turn I could make.

"I tipped her out just as a party of summer boarders came along. The buggy was smashed up some, and the girl rode off with the boarders, mad as a hornet. There was a young man among them whom she afterward married.

"I don't begrudge her to him, for I got a finer girl later on, but when the name the boarders gave that place in the road stuck and by and by was put up on the signboard while I was out west I can't say that it ever struck me as any special cause for pride."—Youth's Companion.

Books and Beeches.

At a sale in New York a bibliophile said:

"Book is a word that comes from the German buche, or beech. But what connection has a book got with a beech? I'll show you."

The bibliophile led the way to a superb Oaxton that had just been sold for $3,800.

"This volume, you see," he said, "is bound in boards—not pasteboards—real boards, beech boards. That is how all books were bound when printing began. Yes, when printing began in Germany, each incunabulum, or early book, was bound in buche—in beech boards half an inch thick, covered perhaps with leather, tipped and clasped with brass and studded with precious or semi-precious stones."

Told Him So.

"See now, landlord," said an angry tenant after he had signed the contract for a year, "this house is full of sewer gas."

"Yes; that's what I told you."

"Told me?"

"Yes. You asked me if there was gas in every room, and I said there was."—London Tatler.

Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

The story of the Borden meeting at Melville, Saskatchewan, is instructive. Mr. Borden himself was received with cordiality and listened to with attention; but when one of his supporters undertook to expound the Borden doctrine there were so many questions and interruptions that he gave up the attempt. The significance of this incident is in the light which it throws on Mr. Borden's visit to the west. He has been warmly welcomed and courteously treated; but the welcome has been for the man, not for his policy.

Regina Leader.

The only way an Opposition can force a dissolution is to obstruct and withhold supplies, and when that is done there is no alternative but for the Government to go to the country. Such being the case the attitude of Messrs. Bergeron and Perley is clear-cut evidence of the fact that at least two out of the four men accompanying Mr. Borden are determined to face an immediate appeal to the people, which means that they are prepared as far as possible to cripple the people of the west from exerting their full influence in favor of reciprocity.

Halifax Chronicle.

On the other hand, what has been the attitude of the Conservative party on the policy of preference? It is certainly true to say that it has been the deadly enemy of the policy of British preference. It has ridiculed and denounced it at every stage, and even the other day, when Mr. Borden was confronted with a demand by a delegation of farmers in the west, asking for an increase in the British preference, he made an evasive answer. He could not declare in favor of an increase in the preference without alienating the support of the "interests," for it is an unquestioned fact that the opponents of reciprocity in Canada are equally as strongly opposed to any increase in the British preference. Mr. Borden and his allies and friends, then, are the deadly enemies of the British preference.

Edmonton Bulletin.

And what advertisement is this campaign giving us in the outside world? What is the point it is impressing upon the people of the United States, and of every other foreign country who may be taking note of it? Simply this, that the foundation of the Empire is a purely material one; that its parts will hang together only so long as the other members are willing and able to bribe the greedy member to stay in; that behind the appearance of solidarity there is no vital sentiment; that it is merely a commercial association of peoples having no essential spirit of kinship; that it cannot stand without the artificial bonds of tariffs, and will fall to pieces if these be not established or be afterward removed. Does the spread of this libel do anything to discourage the enemies of England, if such there be? Is its effect to establish in the world the idea that the Empire is one and indivisible, an enduring union of free, kindred peoples, and not a mere temporary association of selfish parties subject to disruption at any moment by the pull of material interest?

I started playing the violin, once said, "when I was very young. I studied on the sly, but one day my father heard me playing and he thought I ought to be properly trained. We were a very musical family. Despite our tender years, my brothers and sisters used to give performances of operettas, and in these I used to sing and play the violin." When she was a little toddler of seven Wilma Neruda made her first appearance on a great concert platform, playing at Jansa's concert in Vienna one of Bach's violin Sonatas. Lady Halle's public career has thus extended over 65 years. At the Princess' Theatre in London sixty-two years ago she began her connection with English musical life. On June 11, 1849, she played at the Philharmonic Society with much success the solo part in a Concerto by De Beriot. Not, however, until 20 years later did this gifted artist, who had now become Madame Norman-Neruda, again visit London, when she appeared a second time at one of the Philharmonic Society concerts. And it was only with difficulty that Vicentemps persuaded her to remain in England during the winter of 1896 in order to head the famous quartette at the series of Monday Popular Concerts at the old St. James' Hall in the weeks before Christmas.

So great was her success that she was re-engaged by Messrs. Chappell for the ensuing season, and until 1898 she appeared every year at the Popular Concerts. Many thousands of music-lovers in London and the country will remember with pleasure the "Saturday Pops" during that period, at which she was a chief attraction. In 1896, shortly after the death of Sir Charles Halle, who was her second husband, a public subscription in her honor was organized by a committee, over which the late King Edward, who was then Prince of Wales, presided. With the committee were also associated the King of Sweden, the King of Denmark, and many eminent figures in music and politics. A large sum of money was raised, and Lady Halle was presented by the late King at Marlborough House with the title-deeds of a mansion at Asolo, near Venice. In 1901 Queen Alexandra gave her the honorific title of "Violinist to the Queen." For many years past she has been living alternately in Berlin and London, and did a little special teaching. At a very early stage in Lady Halle's career Dr. Joachim expressed his admiration of her talent. "When people shall have heard her play," he said, "they will not think so much of me." To this extent the implied prophecy was fulfilled, that Lady Halle was his legitimate successor as a violinist.

CHEAP PERFUMES.

Made From Musk Supplied by Many Varieties of Civet Cats.

Most women who indulge freely in the use of cheap perfumes do not know of what they are compounded. The principal ingredient of low priced perfumes is musk, animal musk, which is obtained from several creatures.

The muskrat is probably the best known of these, and a few decades ago the wives and sweethearts of men who set traps around ditches and ponds in the countryside carried proudly the bags of musk obtained from this source. As an article of commerce the musk supplied by several varieties of civet cats is probably the best known today. The odor is strong and sweet. The strength is the particularly noticeable feature and is the reason why it is the foundation of the perfumes. In the small mammal house at the zoological gardens are two sizes of civets, and any one with an investigating turn of mind may stand near the cages and catch the musky odor.

The musk is used in the cheap perfumes, as only a little is needed to give a most lasting odor to an ounce of perfumery, but the musk itself is not cheap, and it is one of the duties of the attendant of the mammal house to collect it. It is then sold through regular channels and is one of the sources of revenue to the zoo, although a small one.—Philadelphia Record.

PREVENTED TOOTHACHE.

The Old Romans Did It by Devouring Two Rats a Month.

If it be true that ancient remedies are always the best it may be of interest to those afflicted with dental troubles to know how the ancient Romans dealt with such ills. The Quirites recognized two types of treatment, the magical and the medical. The following are some of the prescriptions advised by the magicians:

Take the head of a dog that has died of rabies, mix the ash with oil of cyprus and inject the product into the ear of the affected side.

A water snake's vertebra will serve to scarify the gum provided that it be obtained from a white skinned snake, or for the same purpose may be used a lizard's frontal bone obtained when the moon is full, or, if that fail, a chicken bone will do, provided that it be dried in a hole in a wall and thrown away immediately after used.

It is good treatment to inject into an aching ear oil of lemon in which have been macerated mallow bugs, even should this last give rise to itching.

A worm fed on a particular herb or a cabbage caterpillar can conveniently be placed in a hollow tooth, but it is equally simple to chew an adder's heart.

Prevention being better than cure, a sovereign preventive will be found in the eating of two rats a month.—London Hospital.

Two Points of View.

Nice discrimination would be required to decide which is the pessimist and which the optimist in the appended war reminiscence.

During one of the battles of Murfreesboro a group of wounded men was huddled about a field hospital, waiting surgical attention, when a big brawny trooper, with a bullet in his left leg and another in his right arm, hobbled up, holding his wounded arm in his left hand.

"Doc," he drawled, "the Johnnies came pretty near hitting me."

Another fellow blowing blood copiously from his nose, the point of which had been shot off, promptly interposed:

"Doctor, the rascals"—sputter—"came near"—another blow and sputter—"missing me."

Many Generations.

The case of six generations living is given by Tennyson thus: "Daughter, arise; thy daughter to her daughter take whose daughter's daughter crieth." George Hakewell in the seventeenth century had imagined one descent more, for in his "Apologie" he writes that the mother said to her daughter, "Daughter, bid thy daughter tell her daughter that her daughter's daughter hath a daughter," a credible injunction in the case of a centenarian only.

use and its extravagance—a well confusion of Bohemia and the Arabian Nights. The spoils of the bazaars of Algeria and Tunis lay about the house, commingled with costly treasures of home manufacture, in a supreme disorder, and there was every embellishment which the caprices of a luxurious and undisciplined imagination could suggest—gothic turrets, pavilions, minarets, an artificial lake with an island and a cascade, a picture gallery, a studio, an aviary, a monkey house, a stable, a bijou theater, a kiosk with a blue ceiling studded with stars to serve as a workroom for the master, who had the titles of his principal plays and stories graven conspicuously on the stones of his dwelling—"Passions of the French Romantics."

Old Time Smoke Nuisance.
We are accustomed to think of the smoke nuisance as a modern phenomenon, but Professor V. B. Lewis shows that it raised so much indignation in England 600 years ago that a decree was made forbidding the use of bituminous coal for fuel. Such fuel was then a new thing.

In the time of Queen Elizabeth another attempt to use bituminous coal was defeated by public opposition to the smoke. The third effort attained complete success in the nineteenth century, and now the quantity of smoke belched into the air is so great that Professor Lewis likens it to a cumulative poison which aids in shortening life, killing vegetation and begriming and destroying buildings.—Youth's Companion.

DEAD SEA WATER.

We Density Is More Than Double That of the Red Sea.

The Dead sea contains 23 per cent of solid matter and is bulk for bulk heavier than the human body. Many believe that it is impossible to swim in the sea, and even in Jerusalem ridiculous fables are told as to the impossibility of bathing there and that no animals or vegetation can exist near its shores.

So far as swimming is concerned, the excessive buoyancy of the water simply renders it difficult to make much headway, but a swim is both feasible and enjoyable. Care should be taken, however, not to let the water get into the eyes.

Indeed, didn't Palestine belong to any power but Turkey probably the northern shore of the Dead sea would be a popular bathing station. No doubt the chloride of magnesium which enters so largely into the composition of the water would be found to have medicinal and curative properties.

Perhaps a better idea of the density of the water of this inland sea may be realized from the following statistics: In a ton of water from the Caspian sea there are eleven pounds of salt; in the Baltic, eighteen pounds; in the Black sea, twenty-six pounds; in the Atlantic, thirty-one pounds; in the English channel, seventy-two pounds; in the Mediterranean, eighty-two pounds; in the Red sea, ninety-three pounds; in the Dead sea, 187 pounds.—World's Work.

SHIPS THAT KICK.

Seamen Don't Like Them and Dodge Them if They Can.

When sailors join a ship almost the first question asked by each one as he takes the wheel for the first time is, "Does she kick?"

Kicking, as it is called by the seamen, is due to the action of the water under the lee of the rudder when the vessel's stern, which has for a moment been borne skyward on the crest of a wave, falls back again into the trough with such terrific force as to make her tremble fore and aft and perhaps wrench the wheel from the grasp of the steersman.

Sometimes it happens that he is taken unawares and, being unable to let go in time, is flung right over the wheel to the other side of the deck, often receiving serious injuries. Sometimes a man will be pitched right overboard into the sea, and a recent case is known of a man who received a blow under the chin from one of the spokes and died a few days later from the effects.

In some of the worst types of kickers kicking straps are used regularly fearfully all weathers, and many sailors refuse to go to sea in ships which are known to be confirmed kickers.—London Tit-Bits.

Astrology With Risks.

Formerly they had rough and ready modes of testing claims to supernatural powers.

"Dost thou know where thou wilt pass Christmas?" asked Henry VIII. of an astrologer. He could not tell.

Whereupon the king's grace, which did love a merry jest, made answer, "Then I am wiser than thou, for I know that thou wilt spend Christmas in prison."

John Galeazzo, duke of Milan, is said to have made even merrier at the expense of an astrologer who foretold him that he would die early.

"And how long do you expect to live?" he inquired of the prophet.

"My lord, my star promises me a long life."

"Never trust to your star, man; you are to be hanged today," and the duke took care that his own prediction should be fulfilled.

Killing One Fly.

Every fly begins as an egg deposited in some kind of organic filth. It hatches into a tiny maggot within a few hours, begins to feed and grow, completes its growth and comes out as a perfect fly in possibly ten days. It then requires at least fourteen days to mature its first batch of eggs, and it may live to mature and deposit at least six layings, of from 120 to 150 eggs each. This means that in killing one fly we may be preventing the hatching of nearly a dozen and others.—Youth's Companion.

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache do not neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

Where They Parted.

Meyerbeer and Rossini, in spite of all their rivalries, were the warmest of friends.

The Reason.

QUAIL SHOOTING.

Some of the Difficulties That Confront the Man With the Gun.

"One of the difficulties of quail shooting lies in the very fact that would apparently make his killing a simple proposition, his rising near the gun," says Charles Askin in Outing. "Let me illustrate: If a quail rose within ten feet of the gun and continued sailing around the shooter's head at a mile a minute gait the chances are that he couldn't be killed in ten shots, both the bird and the gun changing angle with a rapidity beyond the ability of the mind to calculate. In the same way a close springing bird may change his angle with regard to the gun so rapidly as to entail a long and accurate swing before he can be covered.

The nature of the quail's flight frequently makes this long swing unavoidable. The bird may rise to the north, pass to the west and be killed to the south. Had it been possible to foresee that the bird would swing about to the south before being killed the gun might have been pointed there, rendering unnecessary a complex gun movement, but meantime the quarry would probably have gone in some other direction. The quail work that calls for care and skill is cover shooting, and the only safe rule there is to point your gun as near the bird as you can when he breaks and shoot as quickly as you can get on."

HOUSEHOLD SNAKES.

Gibolas Are Used as Domestic Rat Catchers in Brazil.

In certain parts of Brazil, where the climate is intensely hot and where rats are a great nuisance, the common cat does not thrive, but is replaced by a domestic rat catcher whose presence causes a decidedly unpleasant sensation to visitors from the north when first they come in contact with the creature.

Gibolas are a species of small boa constrictor employed very generally in Brazil for the purpose above mentioned. They are not at all venomous. They sleep in the house, generally taking up their position at the foot of the stairs. When nightfall approaches they begin to wake up, and during the night they slide swiftly about the premises, looking for rats.

Gibolas are offered for sale in the markets of Bahia and Pernambuco for prices ranging from $1 to $5, according to the size of the creature. It is said that they are so easily domesticated that if removed from one house to another they invariably return to the house whence they have been taken. Often when one is bargaining with a broker for the sale or lease of a residence in certain parts of Brazil the broker will expatiate with great eloquence upon the virtues and skill of the gibola that goes with it—Harper's Weekly.

Pride of Race.

Many stories are told of the pride of these long descended country squire. They have held their own even with peers of ancient creation. A great friend of the Duke of Norfolk who died in 1835—Jockey of Norfolk—was an old squire who always maintained that his name Huddleston was a corruption of the Baron Athelstan and consequently much more ancient than that of Howard. Like the duke, he was a great toper and at dinner one day rolled off his chair to the floor. The duke ordered a member of his family to raise him up "Never," he cried the old man—"or shall it be

SENSE OF DANGER.

Developed to a Marked Degree in Men Who Work in Mines.

There is something about mines that appeals to the superstitions of mankind, writes T. Lane Carter in the Mining and Scientific Press. One of the most marked effects he has noticed in men who have spent most of their life in mining is a sense of danger that suddenly comes over them.

"Some would call this faculty the sixth sense," he writes. "If you asked a miner how he knows there is something wrong he will reply that he feels it. I had a remarkable illustration of this a few years ago.

"I was walking along a main drift with a mine captain, a man who had been working in mines for over forty years, having started as a lad in the mines of Cornwall. Suddenly he stopped and exclaimed that something was wrong.

"For the life of me I could not see a thing amiss. The timbers seemed solid, and the drive pillars looked secure. But the captain was not satisfied and insisted on climbing into the stope to investigate. There he found a large crack, running for hundreds of feet, indicating a movement of the strata of serious proportions.

"Had this discovery not been made in time there would have been a serious accident in the mine, with a probable loss of life. I dare say the years of experience in the mine had developed a power in him which the untrained called superstition, but which was really the faculty of accurate observation, which to him seemed unconscious.

MADE HIMSELF BLUSH.

Trick by Which an Actor Achieved a Realistic Stage Effect.

Daniel Frohman in his "Memories of a Manager" tells of a muscular trick by which Mr. F. Mackay achieved an astonishing stage effect. It was in Broun Howard's scene of "Our Girls." Mr. Mackay was playing idea was that the count should become violent and furious at the affront, but Mr. Mackay contended that as he had been shown in the play to be an expert duelist and accustomed to danger he was not likely to lose control of himself.

Mr. Howard saw the point. The result was that the Frenchman received the insult without the movement of a muscle. He stood rigid. Only a flash of the eye for an instant revealed his emotion. Then the audience saw his face grow red and then pale. This was followed by the first announcement from the count that he would send his seconds to the Englishman. This exhibition of French emotion betrayed by the visible flush and bleed to the actor's face was frequently noticed at the time. It was a masterful trick. Mr. Mackay had a tight collar for that scene and strained his neck against it until the blood came, and when he released the pressure and the blood reached the chest was reached.

Johns, That Went Astray.
The illustration of what some persons are driven to by means of rumor his story is told of a downtown uncheon. He had to get to pay his way by last night and when I saw him this morning gave him the 5 cents due him and said, 'I thought every minute last night you'd send a collector for this.' 'Now, not on your life; not if you owed me twice as much.' An hour later the boy came to my office, where he had never been before, waiting for me and when I came said: 'Say, I'm awful sorry you thought I was just about de nickel. Ye needn't pay me never till ye want to, and about sendin' for it—now, I thanked him, and now for trying to crack a joke I have secured a lot of credit.'—New York Tribune.

Sir Edwin Arnold as an Editor.
Sir Edwin Arnold was perhaps the most grave man who ever paced Fleet street. His correspondence must have been enormous, but it never seemed a task. He hailed a contribution from an acquaintance with thanks on one day, begged forgiveness on the next for a day's inevitable delay in publication, and on the third offered his congratulations. At first sight people thought the friendly manner too good to be true, but Arnold proved true on long trial. "I am a nightly journal-the "nightly." A proper knight of the ### Clothing or Ornament.

Man will always wear something, but the savage regards clothes as ornaments and ornaments as clothes. Probably a married Mashona woman would rather die than appear without the ring around her shaven head. On the other hand, not long ago a Mashona chief earnestly besought a missionary to give him a pair of trousers, which the missionary, with some reluctance, did. On the following Sunday, when the service was in full swing, the clutch door opened, and the chief advanced up the aisle slowly and with majestic port, wearing one half of the trousers. He had shared the pair with his brother. From "Pastels Under the Southern Cross," in Cornhill Magazine.

A Valuable Tooth.

There is an amusing story of the economy necessary in the early days of the Norwegian theatre at Bergen. It was in 1849, when Ibsen and Bjornson were creating the national drama. A lady had been engaged for the part of "second old woman" when it was discovered that her elocutionary powers were impaired by the fact that she had lost one of her front teeth. Impoverished as she was, the management came to the rescue and bore the expense of the necessary dentistry. When she retired, however, after two seasons, she had to leave the tooth behind her, the example of the dentist's art being the property of the theatre. The management was too poor to part with it.

The Eye of a Giraffe.

Giraffes are the most difficult of all animals to take by surprise. No matter from what direction you may approach the giraffe, the top heavy looking animal is sure to discover you. It has been called the original "rubber-neck." It is not generally known that nature, because of the height of its eyes from the ground, has supplied it with a talent peculiarly its own for making observations. As a matter of fact, a giraffe can see in all directions at the same time without moving its head. The eyes are large and prominent and so placed at the side of the head that, bulging out as they are, they are capable of looking backward as well as forward.

Animals in Fire.

When Cyprus was the centre of the copper industry it is asserted that a four-footed animal with wings lived in the hottest furnaces among the fire and, furthermore, that it would die instantly upon being removed from its natural element, the flames.

The salamander of old was also a creature which did not dread the fire. Some say that it could eat fire and spit flames, others that its touch would ignite all combustible. Pliny says, "This animal is so intensely cold as to extinguish fire by its contact in the same way that ice do."

Sample.

"George didn't keep his engagement with me last night," said the girl who was betrothed to him. "I'd give him a piece of my mind," said her mother. "Just a little sample of married life," suggested father.

Not Yet Voted Out.

"Nan, that young man who called here last night is one of your new admirers, isn't he?"

"Yes, no, auntie. That was Mr. Jones who has been coming here for years. He's one of my holdovers."

So Absurd.

AT LAST, A CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

"Fruit-a-tives Cured Me" Says Mrs. Baxter.

"I was a helpless cripple from Rheumatism for nearly a year. All down the right side, the pain was dreadful and I could not move for the agony. I was treated by two physicians without help. I saw 'Fruit-a-tives' advertised in 'The Telegram' and decided to try them. After I had taken one box, I was much better.

When I had taken three boxes, I could use my arm and the pain was almost gone.

After taking five boxes, I was entirely well again. The cure of my case by 'Fruit-a-tives' was indeed splendid because all the doctors failed to even relieve me. 'Fruit-a-tives' cured me. Mrs. LIZZIE BAXTER.

4 HOME PLACE, TORONTO, Dec. 15, '09.

In hundreds of other cases, 'Fruit-a-tives' has given exactly the same satisfactory results because 'Fruit-a-tives' is the greatest blood purifying medicine in the world. 'Fruit-a-tives' the famous fruit medicine regulates kidneys, liver, bowels and skin, and prevents the accumulation of uric acid, which is the prime cause of Rheumatism.

'Fruit-a-tives' will positively cure every case of Rheumatism, when taken according to directions. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Do Not Live For Centuries.

Before the Christian era men had the idea that elephants were astonishingly long-lived animals. It is perfectly true that the elephant often reaches a green old age, but not quite so green as was supposed by writers of ancient times. Strabo the latter stated that elephants never live to be 500 years old. Strabo's case of one which reached a considerable age of 300 years, which was set down by Pliny also as the maximum, age which proboscideans could attain. But another ancient writer, Ptolemy, went Strabo better. He

PROVIDING FOR THE THROUGH TRIP.

Life is a journey. This is a trite metaphor, but it is trite because it is true. We are each in charge of an engine, which we call the body, and this engine needs fuel, which we call the necessities of life. There are comforts and luxuries which we all desire, and these we may liken to patent attachments and brass and nickel works which reduce the jolts of the journey or give style to the rolling stock.

We find it easy in youth to provide the coal and water as we go along, and to keep the locomotive looking trim. We fly gaily past those stations which we call birthdays, and willingly pick up passengers here and there for whose comfort and safety we become responsible.

Sooner or later the engine runs into an open switch. You know what that means. If it is along the first part of the trip there are passengers left in need of a conveyance. Life insurance has provided the means whereby the young engineers may guard against an early derailment. The benefits of these provisions cannot be over-rated; he is an imprudent driver who neglects them.

There are other contingencies which may arise before the open switch is reached. One of these is the possibility that the journey for the individual may be longer than the average run, and a point be attained where the hand becomes lax at the throttle, and the worry of where to get fuel for the engine presses hard on the man in charge. This is the contingency that the Government of Canada had in mind when it devised its Old Age Annuity scheme,—a scheme whereby the surplus means of youth, and a wise man will find some way to have a surplus, may be kept in store for the needs of age.

The Government has foreseen your needs, and anticipated the requirements for your journey. You entrust to the Government some of the savings you can make when your supplies are in excess of your demands, and the Government assures you coaling stations beyond the fifty-fifth milestone.

The open switch may not appear in your path until long after the seventieth station has been passed. Nothing is more pitiable than to watch the old engines, which cannot leave the tracks if they wish, trying to ascend the grades at the last stages of the journey of life, or to see some of the passengers, once travelling in comfort, now forced to walk the tracks. Friendly companions may give them a lift, or others may push them along grudgingly as a duty. An Annuity may not restore to you the speed of youth, but it will retain for you its independence. If you are concerned, as you should be, with the problem of how to provide for that "last of life for which he first was made," you should ask or schedule at the Government Annuities Branch, Ottawa.

The Government of Canada has shown its faith in the idea of providing against the needs of the last stages by appropriating $70,000 annually to educate the people in the habits of thrift. This appropriation is paid out of the revenues of the Dominion, and not one cent of it is repaid out of the purchase moneys received from the Annuities.

The people of Canada have shown their faith in the scheme by paying in a million dollars to obtain the benefits offered. How many, however, are still running the journey of life blind to the fact that they may need the protection which this scheme affords! Have you the fare for the through trip?

of ancient times. Strabo the latter stated that elephants have to be 500 years old. Strabo also stated of one which reached the venerable age of 300 years, which was set down by Pliny also as the maximum age which proboscideans could attain.

But another authority, Strabo, went Strabo the latter. He asserted that a certain elephant belonging to King Ptolemy lived long enough to become a great favorite with that monarch, but he survived its royal master for several centuries!

Aristotle declared 200 to be the highest age which an elephant could reach. He gave their ordinary span of life as between 120 and 200 years. Baffon also placed the maximum at 200; elephants made it 150 and the Blainville 120. It is pretty generally believed among the people made a record of the question of elephants living long to be 100 years old.

A. J. Paris, of the Paris Zoological Gardens, owned a small elephant called Cherotte, presented, full-grown, by Mohamed Ali in 1825, which lived in captivity till 1855.

The rhinoceros, too, has been known to live many years. The Indian rhinoceros lived in the Paris Zoological Gardens after being there 25 years; nor did he lose one of his tusks, show any signs of weakness or senility. Another rhinoceros lived happily in London Zoo for 37 years. It is not so much and could can live to the age of 100 years.

Compensation For Poachers.

A gamekeeper on a northern estate tells an amusing story of the latest thing in the compensation line. When he was escorting the gentlemen round the covert one day the party were alarmed to hear a loud cry just after shots had been fired. Running to the spot, a thick bush growth, the keeper found a man lying groaning on the ground.

"Some of them gents 'ave shot me in the leg," groaned the man.

Examination proved that the sufferer had indeed received a bird shot pellet in his left calf. It was a trivial injury, but was handsomely compensated for by the gentlemen in the party, who presented the victim with quite a good sum in gold.

That same evening the gamekeeper came upon two men in a quiet lane engaged in a hot dispute about the sharing of some money. One of the men had a shotgun, and, tapping it significantly, he said threateningly: "All shares, or I'll go straight to the police and spilt on us both. I'll give the game away. I'll tell 'em 'ow I put that pill in yer leg to knock money out of the shooter."

Then the gamekeeper disclosed himself, and the two conspirators decamped.—London Opinion.

FORTUNE FAVORS THE BRAVE; OR, A LOOK INTO THE PAST

CHAPTER XIX.—(Cont'd)

She turned her distraught face to him, her blue eyes shone with a fire of beauty, but it was the beauty of bitterness and despair. It seemed as though she did not really realize what was happening at the moment. Derrick Darnley's heart chilled suddenly at her expression. What mental agony she must have suffered to have brought such a look on her young face. Never, surely, was mortal man more tried than Derrick Darnley at this time. He had but to stretch out his arms and fold them about that slender, sorrowful form; to boldly defy the whole world, and holding her secure to his heart, carry her away from this life, which seemed to be beset with vague and horrible surroundings at every turn.

But though he was her lover—though temptation ran like fire in his veins—he conquered it all. The woman must come first. She was in sore trouble. He must comfort her.

"Don't reproach yourself, my dear one," he said, tenderly, drawing her two clenched hands down from her breast, against which in her mental anguish she was pressing them with the most painful force. "There is no ingratitude in your heart. Don't you believe that Dolly knows this—they both know it! You are as dear to them as you were before you left them. Nancy, I am going to do what you ask. I must leave you, my darling, but I can't go while you are in such distress. It is more than I can bear to see you like this." His hold tightened unconsciously as he saw that her eyes had resumed the hunted expression they had worn when they first met. It was a look which sank into his heart. What could it be? Was it fear that brought it?

"Nancy!" urged by some uncontrollable feeling, he broke off and put his hand into his coat pocket. "Nancy—if ever you should want—help—help of any sort, send to me there. You will not call on me in vain."

He pushed a scrap of paper—in reality one of his cards, crumpled up by his nervous fingers—into her hand, and at that very moment the dogs growled, there was a soft, stealthy footstep, and an ominously quiet voice rang in their ears:

"My master is inquiring for you, Mrs. Crawshaw."

Nancy drew her hand hurriedly from Darnley's hold, while every drop of blood receded from her face.

"I—I am coming," she said faintly. "Tell your master I am coming, Fenton."

Fenton, otherwise William, the discharged servant from the Hall, stood perfectly still; but his pale eyes went first to the array of dogs, and then rested on the stalwart form standing beside his mistress.

hope that she would speak, then he turned on his heel and walked swiftly back through the sombre trees, the rank weeds and grass, to the iron-fringed gate which he had leaped so proudly, little imagining, poor fellow, whether his leap would lead him.

Nancy listened to his footsteps dying away, then all the pent-up strength, courage, longing, despair and boundless love burst its bonds.

"Oh, Derry, don't go—don't go! Oh, it is all too much for me! I can't bear it—I can't bear it!"

She put her folded arms against the old trunk, and buried her hot eyes on them.

"If I might die now!" she said to herself.

CHAPTER XX.

It would be difficult to find a more gloomy or unprepossessing domicile than the pile of gray masonry called the Manor House, the aristocratic, uncomfortable place which poor Nancy called her home.

Left for years to fall into decay by its owner, who boldly declared a supreme contempt and horror for his ancient heritage, the manor had been for good two years in the market before a purchaser or tenant was forthcoming sufficiently inclined to accept the property in its ramshackle condition.

It is more than probable that even Crawshaw would have rebelled from the purchase, greatly as his soul longed for some such place; but, as it happened, he did not see the manor until the sale was effected by his trustees, and then, although he stormed a trifle at the gloominess at first, his vulgar, bumptious mind soon found satisfaction and conceit in the fact that he was the actual owner of a fine country mansion and estate.

The furniture and appointments were all included in the sale, and as the family who had held the manor in their possession for years had been as poor as the proverbial church mice, it is not necessary to add that the furniture was both shabby, dirty and old in the extreme.

Perhaps it was owing to this that the owner was glad to get rid of an expensive estate to keep up; but be that as it may, Thomas Crawshaw got the Manor House for a ridiculously low sum, a condition of things which would, in all likelihood, never have happened had he been a poor man.

Gloomy, dingy, shabby as it was, had love been there to shed sunshine around, Nancy would have grown fond of the place, for it had many quaint, queer nooks, all capable of being made cosy and pretty; and a woman's artistic hand allowed free play in the large, gaunt rooms would soon have metamorphosed them; but Nancy, poor child, was not given even this small pleasure. Though her hus-instance than that which followed on her arrival at the Manor House.

She found herself, to her amazement and her fear, nothing less than a prisoner, with an impertinent maid on one side as a jailer, and Fenton as a second on the other.

The weather broke almost immediately on their return to the country, and then commenced Nancy's trials. She was expected all day to be at attention to amuse and interest her husband. She was prevented from indulging in any occupation that might have been pleasant to herself. Her walks were stricken. She could not even pass up the broad, ghostly staircase without noticing that either Marie or Fenton were creeping softly after her. It was vain to nurse a wild hope that she might see Dorothy or some one of the Hall household. Crawshaw very speedily informed her of his intention to separate her entirely from that "stuck-up lot," and that if she dared to disobey him she knew what he would do.

Indeed, one of his greatest delights was to pour out a long torrent of abuse on these people, who were so dear and sacred to Nancy as her dead mother, deriving additional pleasure when he saw the girl wince, though he could never rouse her enough to make her defend them, as he hoped, and so prolong the discussion. Once, and once only, she had turned on him and had cried passionately that he should cease. "It is a defamation to hear their names on your lips. If you must abuse them I shall not stay to listen!" and with that she had swept out of the dining-room, leaving Crawshaw too unsteady on his legs to follow her, for he never stinted himself at dinner-time, and evading Fenton, she had run swiftly upstairs, locked herself in her room, and burst into tears.

Tears, however, were a luxury denied to her often. She would not give her husband the chance of taunting her with weakness, as he certainly would have done. She kept them for the night hours when she lay awake and alone, locked in, in her great, grim bedroom, listening to the sighing of the trees out in the woods beyond which sounded like a dirge in her troubled ears.

CHAPTER XXI.

So the days had gone by in one key, only varied for Nancy by two things—first, the dismissal of Marie, which was an inexpressible comfort; and, secondly, by the news of Sir Humphrey's accident and illness, which was bitter pain.

If she could have crept out at night, she would have walked over the rough, wet country that stretched between the manor and Ripstone, barefooted, to offer her love, help, sympathy to Dorothy; but escape for an hour was impossible, and so she had to live day after day burdened with suspense and self-reproach added to all her other troubles.

She had accepted all the insults and miseries which Crawshaw put upon her as part of the sacrifice demanded for her uncle's safety; and knowing this, she made no complaint, only every now and then, when goaded and tired beyond all endurance, the wild thought came to her to resist it all—to appeal to this man's generosity, his heart, if he possessed one, and entreat him to be more manly with bent head thinking, wondering in the old, sad fashion till the dogs had rushed upon her, and with a great start and a mingled sense of fear, ecstatic delight and deep sorrow, she had raised her eyes and seen Derrick standing before her. What followed has been told.

When, at last, she recovered strength enough to conquer her agitation and emotion, Nancy drew her cloak about her shoulders, and turned slowly back along the unkept paths and weed-grown walks to the Manor House.

She had dried her tears, but her face was very white, even her lips were robbed of their pretty red hue, and her eyes were circled with deep, black marks.

As she progressed slowly toward the large, ugly door, she came upon Fenton, who was evidently waiting and watching her.

At first this man's presence had been almost more than Nancy could endure, and she had been vaguely amazed at the familiarity which existed between her husband and his valet; then, for a time, she had grown accustomed to the insolent, sallow face which haunted her wherever she went; of late, however, since her mail had been dismissed, Nancy's horror of this man had increased; he seemed like place, and at night, when she was some evil spirit skulking about the safely locked in her room, she had caught faint sounds of riotous singing and laughing, which told her all too plainly that the master of the Manor House was enjoying himself as he liked best, and that his confidential servant was assisting him in the laudable task of getting loathsomely intoxicated in as short a time as possible.

Nancy never, by any chance, took any notice of Fenton; but she knew that the man hated her for what had occurred in the past, and that he delighted in offering her every conceivable insult and indignity now that he had the chance.

As she passed him silently and entered the house, the man followed her, and with much fuss and noise closed the great door after them, and having shot the bolts and turned the key, took out the latter and put it in his pocket, whistling ostentatiously the while. If he had expected the girl to make any remark he was disappointed.

Nancy went straight upstairs with her usual firm step, but her heart had suddenly sunk. What could this mean but that the very small amount of liberty which she had hitherto been allowed was to be taken from her? Was there more horror and misery to come?

* NOTHING DOING.

Rat-a-tat-tat!
The old soldier stood on the doorstep and listened.

"Washing-day," he muttered; "no luck here, that's pretty sure." "I expect it's only another bothering beggar—confound 'em!" muttered the angry woman within, as she hastily snatched her hands from the steaming wash-tub and marched grimly forward to meet the base disturber of washing-day's ancient rites and ceremonies.

"If you please, mum," muttered the ancient hero, "I've lost my leg—"

"Well, I ain't got it!" snapped the woman fiercely.

ly. Tell your master I am coming, Fenton."

Fenton, otherwise William, the discharged servant from the Hall, stood perfectly still; but his pale eyes went first to the array of dogs, and then rested on the stalwart form standing beside his mistress.

A sudden rush of passion filled Mr. Darnley's breast.

There was something in the man's manner which roused his anger to its uttermost; he also seemed to have some remembrance of the sorrowful, insolent face.

He waited an instant for Fenton to obey Nancy's order; but apparently that was exactly what Fenton had no intention of doing.

Nancy turned to Darnley.

"Go," she whispered. "I am glad—give my heart's best love to—Dorothy—we may meet again some day."

Derrick Darnley took her outstretched hand, but he did not move away. On the contrary, he looked straight into Fenton's face, with its impertinent smile lingering round the corners of the mouth.

"Your mistress gave you a message; why don't you take it?" he asked, curtly.

Fenton took absolutely no notice of the question, only stood still and smiled on, while Nancy, with a new look of dread growing on her face, was about to move hurriedly away, when Darnley stopped her.

"Stay," he said, in a tone of determination: "stay, Mrs. Crawshaw. This man has dared to be insolent to you. He is no servant of mine; but that has nothing to do with it. I shall punish him all the same."

His hand fell as he spoke with iron force on Fenton's shoulder, and the craven bully began to tremble in every limb.

Crawshaw's wife moved forward hurriedly.

"No, no!—oh! no," she breathed. "Mr. Darnley, you must not. I—Fenton—"

In mingled dismay and disgust Mr. Darnley loosened his grasp, and in one second Mr. Fenton had made a very good and quick escape.

"So," said Darnley, passionately, "you submit to this man's impudence! Nancy, what has come to you?"

His tone cut her to the quick, but it gave her strength.

"This is no place for you, you had better go," she answered him quietly.

He drew away from her.

"You are right," he answered, huskily; "this is no place for me. I'll leave it at once. I shall breathe free when I am out of it. Come, dogs, we are not wanted; we will be off."

He waited one instant in a wild

many a quiet, queer look, capable of being made cosy and pretty; and a woman's artistic hand allowed free play in the large, gaunt rooms would soon have metamorphosed them; but Nancy, poor child, was not given even this small pleasure. Though her husband was so rich—though each day fresh documents were forwarded him by his lawyers and trustees with news of more money, and still more money, to swell his banking account, Thomas Crawshaw derived no pleasure or advantage from his wealth; he was mean to an extraordinary degree; so mean that the servants engaged to attend him refused to remain and serve so negligently a master—so mean that Nancy found time, even in the midst of all her misery, to wonder and muse over so strange a mind which could take pleasure in stinging all around him, when it was in his power to do such good.

She had not been his wife three days before she awoke to the fact that, cruel and contemptible as she had imagined this man's nature to be, she had not done one quarter's justice to the despicable, mean, cowardly spirit of the creature it was her lot to call husband.

She had often, back in the old days, heard her aunt, in eulogizing Thomas Moss, call him a careful man; but no amount of imagining could have summed up the full disgust which his daily, hourly deeds of meanness woke in Nancy's breast.

She had been glad to leave London, where they had only stayed a week, abandoning the continental trip as being altogether too expensive—yes, glad, for her generous, delicate mind had been shocked and disgusted at every turn by some action more repulsive to her than the last.

Crawshaw could do nothing without a fuss and a row—ostentatiousness and loudness was his motto—to him there was only one important motive in life, a continual parade before the world of himself and the magnitude of his importance.

To attempt to describe the agony—there is no other word for it—that a proud, refined girl like Nancy had to endure during that one week in the London hotel, would be impossible. If she had only been permitted to lock herself in her rooms, and hide her face from the astonished and amused glances of the servants, who soon gauged the great man at his true worth!

But this did not please Mr. Crawshaw. He had not married a wife to keep her hidden away, and he meant to flaunt her as well as the rest of his possessions in the eyes of the world.

In all this Baines would have been more than a comfort to the poor girl; but Baines was gone, and a French-woman, engaged she knew not by whom, was in the faithful woman's place, to help Fenton, the valet, in his self-allotted task—or was it an appointed one?—Nancy could not tell—of spying on her every action, and reporting the same to their master.

She had welcomed the departure from London more than words could express. Away from the public gaze she would grow stronger, more able to bear the horror of herself and her life.

So she had reasoned with herself; but she had reckoned without her host.

In all her dreams she could not have imagined a more miserable experience and knowing this, she made no complaint, only every now and then, when goaded and tired beyond all endurance, the wild thought came to her to resist it all—to appeal to this man's generosity, his heart, if he possessed one, and entreat him to be more merciful, to lighten her dark path if ever so little. But she never did this.

She knew too well the result of such pleading. She knew upon what terms alone Crawshaw would consent to alter his present conduct, which arose as much from infuriated vanity as any other reason; and sooner than agree to those terms, she resolved to suffer a hundred-fold more than she was called upon to bear now. Even had he been a less pitiful, contemptible creature, she would never have permitted herself to listen to his love. Love! It was such utter degradation to associate the word with such a man as Crawshaw! Would love have tormented and ruined her happiness as his cruel passion and revenge had done! Love is self-sacrificing, self-forgetting, self-abnegating. What claim could Thomas Crawshaw lay to any one of these?

She had been coerced into a marriage, she had accepted the sacrifice with all its attendant miseries. She had—so she imagined, poor child—saved her uncle from shame, perhaps from death—there her task ended. Sooner than let this man touch her lips—the lips which Derry had kissed—she would have fallen dead at his feet.

And Crawshaw knew this was no melodramatic, empty threat. There was an intensity, a quiet passion about the girl as she uttered it which told him she meant every word. When he had realized this he had vowed to himself that, come what may, he would yet break her stubborn will, her disgust and hatred of himself, and bring her humbled at last to the dust at his feet.

Only one gleam of pleasure came to Nancy out of all this grim darkness—the thought that her uncle was safe and happy. Yes, actually happy at last, for Dr. Grantley had written, telling her that he had heard from Henry Chaplin, giving news of himself and his wife. The latter was returning to England at once, but Nancy's uncle had made friends with some scientific and literary men, who found his brain and information so useful that they had offered him the post of secretary to some society in Melbourne, which not only gave him a salary, but sent him into the seventh heaven of delight.

This letter had reached Nancy the very morning on which Derrick Darnley had started off for his walk with the dogs; and having escaped Fenton's lynx eyes, she made her way to a quiet nook in the lonely woods to read it over and indulge in almost the first faint gladness she had felt for months.

"Poor uncle—dear uncle!" she said to herself, with tears in her blue eyes. "I have saved him and made him happy. Does he ever think of me, I wonder? Does he ever realize what I have done? But I won't let myself doubt him. He loves me—he will never forget me!"

But all the same the poor girl's aching heart longed for some warm word of love and greeting from the man who had indirectly been the cause of all her trouble. She had folded the letter up and put it away in her pocket, and then had sat turbid of washing-day's ancient rites and ceremonies.

"If you please, mum," muttered the ancient hero, "I've lost my leg—"

"Well, I ain't got it!" snapped the woman fiercely.

And the door closed with an awful bang.

BABY'S LIFE THREATENED BY SUMMER COMPLAINT

The life of every baby is threatened during the hot summer months by that dreaded trouble—summer complaint. Thousands of children die every summer from this trouble—thousands of happy homes are made dark and sorrowful because a precious little life has been snuffed out. But mothers, though you fear this trouble, you can yet fight it—yes, fight it and defeat it with Baby's Own Tablets. Concerning them Mrs. Jos. Steffs, Courts, Alta., says: "During the hot summer days my little boy took ill with summer complaint. He was seized with vomiting and nothing helped him till I got Baby's Own Tablets. They relieved him and made him a strong healthy child." The Tablets are for sale by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NEW HEALTH AND NEW STRENGTH FOR SUFFERING WOMEN

Aching Backs, Tired Limbs and Splitting Headaches Need Not be Endured

In silent patience nearly every woman endures suffering that casts a shadow over half her existence. An aching back, tired limbs, attacks of faintness, and headaches and backaches, need not be part of a woman's life. Such trials indicate plainly that the system requires the new blood that is supplied through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills are valued by suffering women who have used them above all other medicines, because they give the rich, red blood that makes women well, bright and at their best. Mrs. Fred Collard, Poplar Point, Man., says: "I can give you but a very small estimate of the suffering I endured before I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After the birth of my first child I suffered intensely from ailments that too often afflict my sex. This was complicated by an attack of bleeding piles, and the agony of the days and nights I endured is almost past comprehension. I tried many remedies, but they did not help me in my trouble, and from a healthy young woman weighing 140 pounds I fell away in weight to 95 pounds. I grew so weak I could hardly walk across the floor, and there were times I hardly knew what I was doing, so great was my agony. I went to Brandon and consulted a doctor who said that nothing would help me but an operation for both my troubles, and that I would have to remain in the hospital for at least eight weeks. Being a farmer's wife I felt that this was impossible, and while in Brandon I met a friend who strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, telling me that they had cured her trouble similar to mine, after an operation had proved of no benefit. She had such strong faith in them that she gave me the first box, and I began using them. It was not long before I found much relief. I continued to use the Pills all the rest of that summer, and the result was they restored me to perfect health. I told the doctor what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done for me, and his reply was that he considered what they had done for me little less than a miracle. I have since recommended the Pills to many others who have suffered from woman's troubles, and they always produced beneficial results. I hope that this statement will be of benefit to some other suffering person."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HAD THEIR DOUBLES.

Instances Among Celebrities—Dickens and Tennyson.

Many celebrities have had their doubles. Grant Duff records that he found "Prof. Schrader so ludicrously like Huxley that I went up and shook hands with him at Lady Alford's." There was a strong physical resemblance between Tennyson and Leslie Stephen, in spite of a disparity in years, and between Jules Ferry and Whiteley, the Universal Provider, says the London Chronicle.

Edmund Yates was so like the Shah of Persia that his photographs were sold in Brussels as the Shah's when Nasr-ed-Din visited that city. Sir Laurence Alma-Tadema used to have a double in George Du Maurier. So closely did they resemble each other that a lady at dinner one night addressed Du Maurier as Sir Alma, and assured him that he was "really not a bit like that Mr. Du Maurier, as people tried to make out."

It is open to the fictionist who deals in doubles to point to many instances in real life. King George and the Czar of Russia could exchange parts without anybody noticing the physical difference. The Duke of Norfolk and the late George Manville Fenn were almost exact duplicates in outward appearance. And two such artists in different ways as Anthony Hope and Edward German were in their earlier years again and again mistaken for each other.

They were hardly "doubles," but there was a remarkable resemblance between Tennyson and Dickens. Comyns Carr in his "Eminent Victorians," tells how he once showed the poet a pencil drawing which Millais had made of Dickens after death. Mr. Carr himself had been struck by the resemblance the portrait bore to Tennyson, and was curious to see if the poet would notice it. Tennyson gazed at it intently for a minute and then exclaimed, "Why this is a most extraordinary drawing. It is exactly like myself."

A Purely Vegetable Pill.—The chief ingredients of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are mandrake and dandelion, sedative and purgative, but perfectly harmless in their action. They cleanse and purify and have a most healthful effect upon the secretions of the digestive organs. The dyspeptic and all who suffer from liver and kidney ailments will find in these pills the most effective medicine in concentrated form that has yet been offered to the suffering.

How the Great Cat Combined Amusement With Business.

Charles Livingston Bull had the good fortune to see a young jaguar at play in a jungle of British Guiana. He tells, in "Under the Roof of the Jungle," how the great cat combined amusement with business.

He climbed a slight rise of ground to a sandy, forest-covered ridge. Just before he came to the top of this low ridge he saw a curious creature making off among the big roots.

In two bounds he overtook it, but as he struck it with his paw, it curled up into a ball and rolled away for a short distance, until it brought up against a big, flat root.

The jaguar sniffed at it, tentatively pawed it, and watched it with keen interest as it rolled this way and that. Soon he was playing with it as a kitten plays with a ball, knocking it away and springing after it, or clutching it with his paws and rolling over on his back in ecstasy. Then, after a little he left it, and walking to one side, sat down and washed his face and paws just as a cat might have done, pretending to take no notice of the curious, hard-shelled beast.

It was an armadillo, that curious creature which, like the tortoise, carries its house upon its back. The hinged bands in its shell enabled it to fold head, feet and tail compactly away, and to assume almost the shape of a sphere. Its tough, elastic shell was proof against even the blows of the big cat.

The jaguar's attention was next attracted by sounds from the jungle of cracking brush, squealing and grunting. Leaping lightly upon a fallen tree trunk, he crouched, perhaps ten feet from the ground, and watched a band of peccaries, little black pigs of the jungle, which were nosing along, picking up occasional nuts as they came.

For several minutes they stood rigid, making no sound, and the spotted cat needed all his self-control to keep his whereabouts unknown. Then, one by one, the pigs turned and started to steal silently back through the jungle.

As the last one turned, the jaguar sprang. With one savage blow he stunned the peccary, and seizing his prey, sprang back upon the sloping trunk, and climbed quickly up for twenty or thirty feet, to a great knot, the top of which was fairly level. There he laid down his burden and proceeded to make a generous meal.

AN OLD HAND.

"Have you had any experience in the china trade?" asked the merchant.

"Many years of it, sir," answered the applicant for the situation. "H'm! What do you do when you break a very valuable piece of china?"

"Well—er—I generally put it together and place it somewhere for a customer to knock over. Then charge him for it."

"You'll do, my man. Take off your coat and start right away."

As a vermifuge there is nothing so potent as Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, and it can be given to the most delicate child without fear or injury to the constitution.

A QUESTION.

"Men who always wear their hats soon become bald. I've noticed that."

"You're mixing up cause and effect. What you've noticed is that bald men are always careful to wear their hats."

No person should go from home without a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial in their possession, as change of water, cooking, climate, etc., frequently brings on summer complaint, and there is nothing like being ready with a sure remedy at hand, which oftentimes saves great suffering and frequently valuable lives. This Cordial has gained for itself a widespread reputation for affording prompt relief from all summer complaints.

Schoolmaster—"When is the best time for gathering apples?" Billy Bates—"Please, sir, when the farmer's at the market and the dogs is chained up."

Don't ignore the few house flies you see in June. Unless you commence using Wilson's Fly Pads early your house will be overrun by them in midsummer.

MONEY WEARS OUT QUICKLY.

Wastage Through Circulation on British Gold and Silver Coins.

It is the duty of each loyal subject not merely to refuse gold coin that is under a certain weight, but to break it, says Pearson's Weekly.

"Every person," the act reads, "shall by himself or others, cut, break or deface such coin tendered to him in payment and the person tendering the same shall bear the loss."

But in spite of this act it is risky business interfering with coins which you may suspect to be under weight or spurious. Some months ago a Grimsby woman offered a half sovereign in payment of goods to a local shopkeeper. The latter put the coin in a testing machine, and as it broke in two, refused to take it.

The coin, however, was pronounced by experts to be perfectly genuine, and when the case was taken into a court of law the shopkeeper was ordered to refund ten shillings to the customer.

Money, both gold and silver, wears out at a startling rate. It is reckoned that there is usually a hundred million pounds in gold coin in England, a very large proportion of which is locked in the

PURIFIED HIS BLOOD

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills
Healed Mr. Wilson's Sores

When the sewers of the body—bowels, kidneys and skin ducts—get clogged up, the blood quickly becomes impure and frequently sores break out over the body. The way to heal them, as Mr. Richard Wilson, who lives near London, Ont., found, is to purify the blood. He writes:

"For some time I had been in a low, depressed condition. My appetite left me and I soon began to suffer from indigestion. Quite a number of small sores and blotches formed all over my skin. I tried medicine for the blood and used many kinds of ointments, but without satisfactory results. What was wanted was a thorough cleansing of the blood, and I looked about in vain for some medicine that would accomplish this.

At last Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were brought to my notice, and they are one of the most wonderful medicines I have ever known. My blood was purified in a very short time, sores healed up, my indigestion vanished. They always have a place in my home and are looked upon as the family remedy."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cleanse the system thoroughly. Sold by all dealers at 25c a box.

DAINTY DISHES.

Currant Loaf.—Beat into two pounds of dough when ready for baking six tablespoonfuls of well washed currants, three tablespoonfuls of sugar and one ounce of butter. Bake like an ordinary loaf.

A Simple Tapioca Pudding.—Soak two tablespoonfuls of tapioca in a pint of milk for an hour, then put it on to boil, stirring it to prevent sticking. Mix in (off the fire), one egg, and a tablespoonful of sugar. Bake in a greased pie-dish till nicely browned.

Rhubarb Charlotte.—Butter a pie-dish and cover the bottom of it with crumbs. Then put in a layer of rhubarb, the pieces to be an inch long, add brown sugar, a little grated lemon-peel and powdered ginger. Continue in this way till the dish is full, having breadcrumbs last. Put a few bits of butter on the top and bake in a moderate oven for an hour.

Maid of Honor.—This is a very good old-fashioned recipe: Beat to a fine cream, add two ounces of caster sugar and beat all together. Add the yolks of two eggs, beat again, add a small quantity of milk. Shake in a few currants and finely chopped peel. Beat all together, place in pastry-lined patty-pans and bake till the pastry is cooked.

Cornflour cheese is a very economical and tasty recipe. First grate the cheese you wish to use, then boil it slowly in sufficient milk to dissolve it. In the meantime, for every half pint of milk used, mix smoothly a teaspoonful of cornflour with a little cold milk. Then add to the cheese and milk and cook all together while stirring for ten minutes. Season to taste with cayenne pepper, mustard and salt, and serve on hot buttered toast.

Roman Cream.—Gradually work up one pint of milk into two ounces of ground rice, then stir it over the fire till it boils. Continue stirring for seven or eight minutes, or until the rice thickens and tastes cooked. Add one ounce of butter, sugar to taste, and a few drops of cochineal. Stir well and flavor with vanilla. Spread the bottom of a glass dish with raspberry jam, crumble over it two macaroons, and cover with the ground rice, putting it on in spoonfuls. When cold, serve.

Bacon fritters are excellent for using up a shabby piece of boiled bacon. Make a light batter with one egg, half a pint of milk, a quarter of a pound of flour, half a teaspoonful of baking-powder, and stir into it a tablespoonful of chopped bacon. Melt some fat in a frying-pan, and when it ceases to frizzle and a blue smoke rises, put in a spoonful of the batter. Turn the fritters so as to cook on both sides. Then drain on paper at the door of the oven. Serve very hot in a dish paper.

Many would be glad to know that two or three slices from a good large lemon put into a boiler on washing-day with white linen will make it beautiful and white, and get all stains out of the pocket-handkerchiefs and children's pinafores. Cut the lemon with the rind on, and let it remain in the boiler.

Cheese that has become dry can be pounded on a plate with a knife, or, better still, in a wooden bowl with the end of a rolling-pin, and a small piece of butter. When mixed, it can be used, seasoned with pepper, for sandwiches, and the remainder, well pressed down, stored in a covered jar. It can also be grated and used for cheese dishes.

Some children have a habit of throwing themselves on the floor, kicking and screaming, when anything goes contrary to their wishes. The usual remedy applied is beating. A much better plan is to walk quietly and unconcernedly away, lock the door, and leave the child to kick and scream to its heart's content. It will soon wisely conclude that it is hurting no one but itself. A few applications of this remedy will usually cure the worst case.

POTATO BLIGHT.

(Dr. J. B. Dandeno, M.A., Bowmanville, Ont.)

Late blight of potato is usually very prevalent in localities where the air is moist and the soil damp and fertile. This disease is generally disastrous when it appears, because it attacks the tubers and the whole crop is lost. The blight is readily controlled by spraying with bordeaux mixture about four or six times during the season. This is so troublesome or costly as at first appears, because at least two applications of Paris green are necessary to check the potato bug, and both this and bordeaux can be applied at one time by mixing the two.

It is true that this disease does not occur every year, and it might seem to be a waste of time and material to spray in a season when the disease is not prevalent. But as prevention is the only remedy for the disease, to be sure of a crop it will be necessary to spray, because no one can predict when the disease will appear.

To show the value of regular spraying year by year, permit me to offer some results of experiments conducted in the State of New York in various localities, and carried through from six to ten years: (a) 76 experiments, average gain per acre 43.8 bushels, or $17.94, 1903 to 1908 inclusive, 6 years. (b) Results of seven year experiments: at Geneva, N. Y., average gain per acre 110 bushels when sprayed every

INTERNATIONAL LESSON.

JULY 16.

Lesson III.—Manasseh's wickedness and penitence, 2 Chron. 33. 1-20

Golden Text, Isa. 1. 16, 17.

Verse 1. Manasseh—The account in 2 Kings 21, from which the first ten verses of this chapter seem to have been taken, adds the name of Hephzibah, the king's mother.

2. Did that which was evil — A common formula for sins connected with worship. In the verses which follow a catalogue of these sins is given, their chief condemnation being that they were a repetition of the abominations of the Canaanites. This was especially true of the Baal and Asherah cults.

3. Built again the high places—Hozekiah had destroyed the country sanctuaries as seats of corruption (2 Kings 18. 4, 22). The account in Kings mentions altars to a single Baal, and "an Asherah" (evidently referring to some one Baal, like the Tyrian Baal of Ahab, and the erection of some single symbolic past representing the goddess Astarte. The Chronicler, on the other hand, has in mind distinct Canaanitish Baals at each place, with corresponding poles. All this was a restoration of the practices of the house of Ahab (2 Kings 10. 18, and 1 Kings 16. 31).

Worshipped all the hosts of heaven—This deifying of the stars, sun, and moon was taken over from Assyria, and was something entirely new in Judah. From the frequent mention of this form of worship in the pre-exilic literature (Jer. 8. 2; 19. 13; Zeph. 1. 5), it is evident that it became immediately prevalent. The flat roofs of the houses afforded ample opportunities.

4. Built altars in the house of Jehovah—That is, altars to Baal and other foreign deities. The two courts (5) were the great court, or inner one, immediately surrounding the temple, and the court inclosing the palace.

6. Also—Here follows a list of six practices expressly prohibited by the Deuteronomic code: (1) Made his children pass through the fire—Ahaz was the first Judæan king to perform this rite, which consisted in actually sacrificing and burning the victims. In later years of the kingdom, this mode of worship was not infrequent. The valley of the son of Hinnom (so called perhaps from some hero who encamped there), was situated south and southwest of Jerusalem, and was the seat of human sacrificial worship. Later it came to be termed "Valley of Slaughter." (2) He practiced augury—This was done by observing the motions of the clouds (compare Lev. 19. 26; Judg. 9. 37, etc.). (3) Used enchantments—Compare the story of Joseph (Gen. 44. 5). The play of light upon the liquid in a cup was regarded as an omen. Other omens are included. (4) Practiced sorcery—See articles, Sorcery and Magic, in Hastings' Dictionary of the Bible. This was an extensive field, and in general signified some mode of obtaining help from the deity by recourse to magical arts. (5) and (6)

A COMEDY OF DOUBLES

I.—THE TROUBLE.

"No, no, my boy, it won't do," and the speaker, Jabez Somerville, of Somerville's Sumptuous Soap, brought his fist down on the table with a force which made the glasses jingle. "The girl may be all you say she is, but she's penniless, and hasn't a title. I'd even forgiven the first if she'd had the last. It's purely a business proposition. I gave you an expensive education and a generous allowance, and in return I expect you to marry a title. If you go contrary to my wishes you lose everything. That's plain speaking, and to the point."

His son, whos he was addressing, sat at the other side of the table, his square jaw set in an expression to the full as determined as that of his father.

"I shall marry Cynthia Dalmaine, if she will have me," he said quietly.

The other's eyes flashed fire, and then softened into an almost pleading expression.

"Don't disappoint me, Harley. I've set my heart on your marrying into the aristocracy. It's what I've worked and slaved for all my life. I've always been a kind, indulgent father to you, haven't I?"

"You have," replied the younger man, "and I'll do anything else you like to ask me. But in a matter of this sort a man must choose for himself if he wishes to retain his manhood and self-respect."

"That is your final decision?" "It is," Harley spoke in a protesting manner, but firmly. "But father—"

"Don't father me," interrupted the old man furiously. "Since you are determined to go your own way, I want to have nothing further to do with you. From to-day my house is closed to you, and our allowance ceases."

"A pretty husband you'll make for Cynthia Darmaine," he continued. "When she hears you'll get no money from me I don't suppose she'll be so keen to marry you."

"If Cynthia marries me it will not be from any mercenary motive," retorted Harley. "I wish you good-night, father." The door closed gently but firmly behind him, and the old man sat listening to the retreating footsteps till they became inaudible.

"He thinks I'll relent, but I won't," he muttered, and his hand closed on the wine-glass till the slender stem broke in his tense grip.

II.—THE PLOT.

Hector Farquhar, gay, handsome, and debonair, surveyed his old college chum carelessly through the haze of cigarette smoke.

"Marry the girl, by all means, my dear fellow, with my blessing," he laughed, "and live happily ever afterwards. It's love that makes the world go round you know. I'll see you through."

"I intend to marry Cynthia anyhow," Harley Somerville's face was serious, "but I'm afraid you don't quite appreciate the difficulties of the situation. You see I've no money. If I only had a bit of frizzle and a blue smoke rises, put in a spoonful of the batter. Turn the fritters so as to cook on both sides. Then drain on paper at the door of the oven. Serve very hot in a dish paper.

Beef Trifles.—Take one pound of cold beef, free from skin and fat, and chop it as finely as possible. Place the mince in a basin with a seasoning of pepper, salt, a teaspoonful of grated horseradish, three ounces of fine breadcrumbs and a little chopped onion. Add two ounces of butter, and after mixing thoroughly moisten with an egg. Place the mixture in small cups, bake in a moderate oven for twenty minutes, then turn out on to a hot dish. Pour a nice gravy round and serve.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Dust silk with velvet, not a brush. Flour absorbs all odors, so should be carefully covered.

When elder blooms keep a bunch in your room. It will smell sweet and keep away flies.

Vegetables must not be allowed to lie in a heap, but should be spread out on a stone floor.

Mouse traps should be thoroughly scalded and aired after two or three captures, or they will be practically useless.

When cooking onions, set a tin cup of vinegar on the stove, and let it boil, and there will be no disagreeable odor from the vegetable.

When storing blankets wrap them in plenty of newspaper and lay slices of yellow soap in the folds. Moths dislike soap and printers' ink.

Teapots often become musty when not in use. To prevent this, dry thoroughly, and then put the lid on sideways so that air may get in.

Milky tumblers should be first rinsed in cold water and then washed. If put straight into hot water the glass may be permanently clouded.

Imitation frosted glass for a bathroom may be made thus: Moisten putty with sweet oil and then paint a thin coating over the panes. This will withstand the steam.

Paperclay is invaluable as a saver of soap and labor in laundries. When washing kitchen cloths, dissolve some paperclay in the water, and you will be surprised how quickly the dirt will disappear.

Moth in Carpet.—If you can locate the affected parts, dip a cloth in very hot water with a little ammonia in it. Spread it over the carpet and then go over it with a hot iron. The steam will kill the pest.

To Whiten Boards.—Mix together two parts of soft soap, three parts of silver sand, and one part of lime. Lay a little of this on the boards, rub thoroughly with a wet scrubbing brush, rinse with clean water, and wipe dry.

To save ice bills take a box three or four feet square, fill four or five inches deep with clean, coarse salt, keep salt well dampened, and put milk and butter in this homemade refrigerator, as it will keep food nicely and prove a good substitute for an ice box.

In baking a cake in a round tin, it is not necessary to cover the whole bottom of the tin with an oiled paper. Cut a small round of paper for the centre and oil the rest of the pan. This saves the

(a) 76 experiments, average gain per acre 43.8 bushels, or $17.94, 1903 to 1908 inclusive, 6 years. (b) Results of seven year experiments: at Geneva, N. Y., average gain per acre 110 bushels when sprayed every two weeks, and 34 bushels when sprayed three times; at Riverhead, gain per acre 84 bushels, sprayed every two weeks, and 30 bushels when sprayed three times.

In some years, when there was no late blight, the gain was much less than when the blight was prevalent. But it is worthy of note that there was always a net profit from the sprayed crop as compared with the unsprayed. This net profit varied from $2.55 per acre to $53.92 per acre. This latter experiment was conducted on Long Island in 1908 on 56 acres of potatoes. They were sprayed 8 times at a total cost of $317.93. But this was greater than it need be, because the whole ground had to be gone over, although only half of it was sprayed—4 rows, then 4 check rows (no bordeaux). These check rows were treated 4 times to Paris green for the bug, but no bordeaux. When harvested, the sprayed rows yielded 254.8 bushels per acre, and the check rows 180.3 bushels per acre. That year potatoes sold at 50 cents, time of digging, and for sprayed potatoes, this would yield gross $203.20 per acre.

A sandy soil is ideal for potatoes, and when grown on a turned-down clover sod will yield a crop of good quality if kept free from enemies. Not all the land round Bowmansville is what might be called good potato land, but there is, here and there, not far away, sandy loam which should produce good potato crops. If such land be planted to apple trees, it seems worth while to pursue a rotation—potatoes, oats, clover, potatoes, oats, clover, etc. Potatoes as a crop leaves the soil in better condition than they find it. It is not so much what a crop takes out as what it leaves in the soil that is of real moment in soil problems.

Many potato growers in New York, Maine, and other New England States spray regularly every year, with or without blight, and have no crop failures.

It should be remembered that potato blight and the potato bug, though the two most serious enemies, are by no means the only ones. A person has only to examine a potato leaf to see this. Spraying checks other insects and other fungus diseases, so saving the stimulus that bordeaux has for chlorophyll formation. Moreover, a farmer or orchard man must have all the spraying paraphernalia for his orchard and could easily make use of it (some of it) for other purposes. It pays to spray.

If any one cares to look into this matter we should be glad to give details, especially with regard to the New York experiments.

Lady (at a bird-fancier's)—“And you guarantee this parrot can talk?” Fancier—“Talk! Well, madam, I bought him from a ladies' club because all the members were jealous of him.”

“Yes, the poor fellow had three doctors attending him.” “Is that so? And couldn't the coroner's jury find out which one killed him?”

See articles, Sorcery and Magic, in Hastings's Dictionary of the Bible. This was an extensive field, and in general signified some mode of obtaining help from the deity by recourse to magical arts. (5) and (6) Manasseh also fostered people possessed of supposed powers of divination, and who professed to have intercourse with the spirits of the dead (compare 1 Sam. 28, 7, and Acts 16, 16). Ventriloquism was one of the devices resorted to by these wizards (Isa. 8, 19).

7. The graven image of the idol—Jehovah had ordained that no name should forever be localized in the temple but his own, whereas this act made Asherah (perhaps the female deity Astarte) the presiding genius of the house of God.

9. Manasseh seduced Judah—His influence for evil was stronger than that of any previous king of Judah. Many years after Jeremiah attributed to him the disasters which he prophesied should befall the nation.

10-13.—The captivity, repentance, and restoration of the king. For various reasons, especially because of the silence of Kings with regard to this part of the story, some have regarded this as a sort of allegory of Israel in exile.

11. The king of Assyria.—Esarhaddon, or Asurbanipal. The Assyrian inscriptions mention Manasseh as a vassal. Perhaps he had been involved in an insurgent movement against the king, which was aided by some of the Palestine states. The letters by which he was dragged to Babylon were probably looks (margin) thrust through the nostrils or lips.

13. Brought him again to Jerusalem.—There is nothing improbable in this. Necho, king of Egypt, received similar treatment from Asurbanipal.

14. An outer wall.—Outside the already existing rampart of the citadel, on the ridge “above the present Virgin's spring, Manasseh constructed another line of fortification, which he carried northward past the temple mount and round its southern slopes.” The fish-gate was in the northern wall of the city. It is supposed fish passed through it from Tyre. Ophel was an artificial mound south of the temple inclosure.

15. The rest of the acts of Manasseh.—For such a long reign, certainly few deeds are recorded, and most of them reflect little credit upon this king. His prayer, or what purports to be, is found in the Apocrypha, just before 1 Maccabees. The words of the seers, or prophetic counsel given him, together with the prayer were to be found in the original book of kings, a much older document (unpreserved) than our Kings.

19. Hozai.—The sayings of the seers. These historical data must have formed a part of the now lost records from which the Chronicler and the author of the Kings drew.

20. In his own house.—2 Kings 21. 26 says he was buried in the garden of Uzza; doubtless one laid out by Uzziah in the court of the palace. In this garden Manasseh may have constructed a house.

Amon.—Of his brief reign nothing is said, except that he followed in the evil ways of his father.

Her—“Generally speaking, a woman is—” Her—“Is what?” Him—“Generally speaking.”

“I intend to marry Cynthia anyhow,” Harley Somerville's face was serious, “but I'm afraid you don't quite appreciate the difficulties of the situation. You see I've no money. If I only had a bit of capital I could take advantage of Frank Denver's offer of a partnership in his business, but without money I'm helpless.”

“I wish I could help you, old chap,” commented Hector, heartily, “but you know journalists don't make fortunes nowadays.”

“I'll take the will for the deed.” “Unfortunately, that won't help you. We must hit on some idea—by Jove I have it—the very thing! We'll make your refractory parent provide the sinews of war. It is only poetic justice,” and leaning closer to his friend, Hector proceeded to outline his scheme.

“What do you think of it?” he asked. “Napoleonic—Machiavelian, eh?”

“Certainly the latter,” replied Harley, smiling, “but it isn't quite cricket, is it?”

“My dear boy, you are too squeamish,” protested Hector. “If your father had been as particular he'd never have amassed a fortune. Besides, all's fair in love and war.”

Jabez Somerville sat pondering over two communications with a puzzled look on his face. The first was signed Cynthia Dalmaine, and ran as follows:

“Dear Sir,—I understand from your son that you wish him to marry a title, and that if he refuses to do so you will disinherit him.

“Please believe that I am entirely in sympathy with your desires in this direction, and you need apprehend no opposition on my part.”

“Well, she takes it pretty coolly,” commented the millionaire as he finished reading it for the second time. “But it is as I said, now that she knows Harley will not get my money she is eager to be off with him. Yet, somehow, from what I have seen of her I should not have altogether thought she was that sort of a girl. In fact, if it hadn't been that I want Harley to enter into Society there is no girl I would have sooner welcomed as my daughter-in-law. However, I would sooner part with anything than my dearest ambition and the girl, by showing her unworthiness, has justified my apparent harshness.”

So saying, he took up the second letter, which was an anonymous communication, written in a straggling hand on a half-sheet of notepaper.

“Dear Sir,” it commenced, “It may interest you to know that your son is carrying on shamefully with an actress from the Elysium Theatre named Daisy Montmorency. They are to be seen together everywhere; driving in the Park and dining at expensive restaurants.”

“It is whispered in certain circles that the young lady intends inveigling him into marrying her, in order that she may have the handling of your millions. She is a totally worthless woman, wholly mercenary, and the only interest the writer of this letter has in the matter is that he wishes to prevent your son from being victimized by such a creature.”

This effusion, though it surprised the soap merchant considerably, was not wholly unpleasant reading to him. He was rather pleased at the turn matters had taken. He had not been at all sure how to deal with Cynthia Dalmaine, but Daisy Montmorency presented no difficulties to him.

Cynthia had wanted Harley himself—and why she had released him now he was puzzled to say—but Daisy was plainly out for money, and would be open to a bargain. She would drive a hard one, no doubt, but Jabez Somerville was a rich man, and not particular to a thousand or two if he could get Harley out of her clutches.

That accomplished, things would go hardly with him if Harley, rejected by both Cynthia and Daisy, did not eventually agree to realise the ambition of his father's life and marry a title. There was the Countess of Salechester, who was more than half willing that her daughter, Lady Adele St. Clair, should be led to the altar by his son.

So Jabez donned his smartest hat and repaired to the Elysium Theatre. A humble commissioner in a gorgeous uniform—impressed by his prosperous appearance, and the magnificence of his tip—graciously consented to carry his card to Miss Montmorency, and presently returned to say that the lady was at her flat in Balcour Gardens. Perhaps the gentleman would seek her there, No. 12a.

The millionaire, determined to see the matter out, hailed a cab and alighted at Balcour Gardens, an imposing block of flats near St. John's wood. Having located No. 12a he handed in his card, and was eventually ushered into the presence of Miss Daisy Montmorency.

He found her disposed in an elegant attitude upon a sofa, with a lighted cigarette between her red lips.

"Doubtless you have heard of my engagement to your son," she said, waving him carelessly to a seat, "and have come to convey the parental blessing. Very good of you, I am sure, but cut it as short as you can, there's a good chap. These touching scenes go down all right in melodrama, but in real life they are rather boring."

Jabez Somerville smiled grimly.

"Don't worry yourself, my dear," he replied. "I came here to talk business. Pathos is no more in my line than it is in yours. In the first place I want to tell you that the day my son marries you, I cut him out of my will."

"Noble father foils adventures adventure takes poison—son marries aristocratic ingenue—happy finale—curtain! It only requires a low comedian with a soft heart and an impossible sweetheart to complete the tableau." Daisy Montmorency smiled languidly.

"You can cut the poison business and you won't be far out," commented the millionaire. "I'm not hard-hearted. Do you think a couple of thousand pounds would heal your broken heart?"

"Base, sordid man; little you know the value of a love like mine! Can two thousand pounds ease an aching heart—make it ten."

"I need not give you anything. You would not be such an idiot as to marry a penniless man," Jabez Somerville smiled triumphantly.

"I'm not so sure. I can be very vindictive, and it would ruin your project. I think you would be prepared to pay ten thousand to obviate that."

"Suppose I make it five?"

"Won't do," commented the fair actress laconically. "Five thou' is no good to me. It is ten or nothing."

"Very well," sighed the million-

he was in despair how to get the money to marry his Cynthia, and that clever man, Mr. Farquhar, got him out of the difficulty. And how do you think he did it? He disguised himself as an actress—you've no idea what a splendid woman he makes—and somehow got ten thousand pounds out of some old fool of a man—so clever of him, wasn't it?"

"Very clever, indeed!" said Jabez, grimly, removing his hat to mop his brow.—Pearson's Weekly.

THE HOUSE FLY A BEARER OF TUBERCULOSIS GERMS.

(By Charles M. Bice, Denver, Colorado.)

It has been often shown how dangerous a carrier of typhoid fever germs the common house fly has been proven to be. Investigation and experiments demonstrate that the fly is the carrier of many other very dangerous and fatal diseases, including the dreadful tuberculosis germ. It has been demonstrated that the fly bears the principal part of the various so-called "summer complaints" that number their victims by the thousands among children every summer.

Dr. Fraser found in Portsmouth, England, that during the great epidemic of 1902, that there was a perfect plague of flies in every house where that disorder prevailed; and Dr. Nash is authority for the statement, that in 23 cases of diarrhoea at Southend-on-Sea, in the summer of 1901, each owed its inception to the pesky fly, so numerous during that season; and that during the next summer, which was very wet and free of flies, not a case was found until September of the same year, being dry, the flies reappeared, and with them 13 cases of diarrhoea.

Of similar import is the experience of Dr. Snell of Coventry, England, and it all goes to show that where large amounts of refuse are allowed to collect, they not only breed flies in great abundance, but load them with disease germs to be distributed upon our foods wherever they can come in contact with them.

But perhaps the greatest indictment with which the fly is charged, is the recently ascertained fact that the fly is the prolific distributor of tuberculosis germs. This has been long suspected, but only in the past few months have scientists been able to clinch the evidence in the case.

Dr. Leland O. Howard in his remarkable book, "The House Fly as a Disease Carrier," gives a terrible arraignment of this dangerous little buzzer. Drs. Hayward, Cobb, Buchanan and scores of others, have shown that flies gather tubercular germs from the sputa of consumptives, and carry them to the food of well persons, and frequently succeed in their mission of death.

Dr. Frederick T. Lord, after a long series of careful laboratory investigations, reached the following conclusions regarding the carrying of consumption by flies, which prove beyond the peradventure of a doubt, that flies carry these germs from the sick to the well: (1) Flies suck up tubercular sputum and excrete bacilli, the virulence of which may last for at least 15 days. (2) The danger of human infection from tubercular droppings is in eating

THE FARM

Useful Hints for the Tiller of the Soil

PROFITS OF DRAINAGE.

Prof. W. H. Day has recently been making some calculations on the financial side of drainage. A farmer has 50 acres that is rather wet, but although not drained it gives say $15 per acre. The value of the crop for five years in succession, together with compound interest, would be $4,144 at the end of the five years. If however, he were to drain 10 acres of the land each year, and if the drainage increased the value of the crop by $10 per acre (which is a low estimate), then the value of the crop for five years, with interest, would be $5,748. After paying for the drainage, with interest, he would have left $4,124, the same within $20 as if he had not drained, but if he drained the whole 50 acres at once, then the five crops, with interest, would be worth $6,908. This after paying for the drainage would leave him a balance of $5,121, which is $977 more than if he had not drained. During the next five-year period drainage by the installment plan would net him $1,604 more than not to drain at all, and the complete drainage would enrich him by $2,764 more than no drainage.

The price allowed for drainage in the calculation was $28 per acre, and the increase in the crop was placed at $10 per acre. As a matter of fact, the increase is usually worth much more than this, so that the computation is somewhat unfair to drainage, however it is better to err on the safe side.

But the increase in crop is not the only return from drainage. The value of the land is largely increased. This is illustrated in the case of a certain farm in Lincoln county. It was bought for $20,000 about two years ago. Last year $2,000 was spent in draining it, and it has since been sold for $12,000.

The Department of Physics, O. A. C., over which Professor Day has charge, has a large staff engaged in making drainage surveys for farmers wishing to drain, but they are kept very busy. Those who wish surveys made this fall should apply at once, as there are nearly as many applications in as can be attended to this season.

The terms on which surveys are made are explained in Bulletins 174 and 175, which may be had free from the Department of Agriculture, Toronto.

CARE OF THE CALF.

If the cow fails to lick the calf soon after birth, it should be rubbed dry with a piece of burlap or some straw and, if necessary, helped to get its first meal. The first milk or "colostrum" that is taken from the udder of the dam, is the best possible food for the young calf. This milk contains a large per cent. of protein and is a wonderful laxative and tonic, working on the digestive system of the calf.

After the calf has had access to its dam for the period of 48 to 72 hours, they may be separated and the calf taught to drink. It should have its mother's milk for the first week or ten days; then it may have a mixture of milk. Its first week of existence will depend largely upon the breed and the size of the calf, ranging from six to ten pounds a day, and this may be worked up to 26 and 20 as the calf advances in age. It is customary to have the whole milk from three to four weeks, then gradually change over on separator milk by adding a small lot of separator milk to the whole each day until the change has been entirely made. The calf may have the separator or skimmed milk until it reaches six months of age or even longer. Great care should be exercised at feeding times that the calves are kept separate, so that they will not acquire the habit of sucking each others ears, etc.

The calf should have access to early cut hay or second crop, also grain of a mixture composed of the following: Corn and cob meal, 100 pounds; ground oats, 100 pounds; bran, 100 pounds; linseed oil meal, 50 pounds. Every precaution should be taken in keeping the calf's feeding pails clean, also in the temperature of the separator and skimmed milk and regularity in feeding. Negligence in this will mean impairing of the health of the calf. The general complaint against growing calves is scours, the cause of this being due to what has already been explained in this paragraph.

WITHHOLDING.

Malachi 3: 8. Luke 12: 19-21.
A man who lived for self alone
Through his long life had wealthy grown
By means which others try:
At length when all his work was done,
There came, with life's declining sun,
The day when he must die.
False had he been in deed and word;
For what he promised to the Lord
He always failed to pay:

military purposes or for ordinary saddle or harness use. In this connection it should be remembered that while horses for the last named, or in fact, for any of these purposes, may well be bred from sires other than Thoroughbred, it is of importance that on the sire or the dam there should, in order to produce the best results, be, in such cases, a strong admixture of Thoroughbred blood.
The conditions under which assistance will be given are as follows:—
(1). All horses of account of which aid is given by the Depart-viate that."

 "Suppose I make it five?"
 "Won't do," commented the fair actress laconically. "Five thou' is no good to me. It is ten or nothing."
 "Very well," sighed the millionaire, drawing out his cheque-book.
 A minute after he took his depari-ture, well pleased with the bargain.
 Could he have seen the fair Daisy five minutes later—minus her wig
 —rolling on the sofa in a paroxysm of mirth—it is safe to say he would have experienced an unpleasant shock.

III.—THE RESULT.

It was about two days after his meeting with the actress that Jabez Somerville received another anonymous letter, which unceremoniously tumbled his house of cards about his ears, and sent him hurrying in his powerful motor car to a church in an out-of-the-way suburb. The communication was to the effect that his son was to be married that day to Cynthia Dalmaine.

The fact that the blow was so unexpected and incomprehensible made it all the harder for the millionaire to bear. Was all his scheming to go for nothing, just as success had apparently crowned his efforts? No—a thousand times
 no. He would stop this wedding by hook or by crook. It was to be at two o'clock according to the letter, and he calculated that he could get there in time. But when he arrived, hot and fuming, he was met in the porch by a cool and smiling best man.

"Pity you couldn't have got here earlier, sir," said Hector Farquhar affably. "The ceremony is just over."

"Very well, sir," spluttered Jabez furiously. "Someone shall suffer for this. 'I'll—I'll—'"

"I wouldn't do anything if I were you."

The millionaire regarded him
 curiously; something in Hector's voice and looks struck him forcibly.

"Where have I seen you before,
 young man?" he asked, grimly.

"Your forgetfulness is not flattering to my charms," replied the other coolly. "I haven't spent that ten thou' yet."

"What?" yelled the millionaire.

"You—you—are—Daisy Montmor-ency?" then suddenly his mood changed, and he roared with laughter. "You young rogue!" he cried.

"You are the first man who ever got the better of Jabez Somerville, and, hang it, I like you for it. Give me your hand."

Their hands met in a hearty clasp.

But there was a further and greater surprise in store for the millionaire, when an aristocratic white-haired old lady came forward, scrutinising him languidly through a pair of glasses with a long tortoiseshell handle.

"Ah, my dear Mr. Somerville," she said, "you have come after all!

Such a romantic affair, you know;
 nothing else would content my daughter. She absolutely refused to marry your son unless she could win his love under humbler auspices and an assumed name. So she ran away and played at being a journalist under the name of Cynthia Dalmaine. And your son fell in love with her, and, of course, in the circumstances refused to marry Lady Adele St. Clair, whom, as he supposed, he had never seen.

"Such a romance, isn't it? But the best is yet to come. It appears that his allowance stopped by you,

of consumption by flies, which prove beyond the peradventure of a doubt, that flies carry these germs from the sick to the well: (1) Flies suck up tubercular sputum and ex-crete bacilli, the virulence of which may last for at least 15 days. (2)
 The danger of human infection from tubercular fly-specks is in eating the food upon which they are deposited. These facts should impress upon all of us the necessity of keeping tuberculosis material (sputum, etc.) protected from flies lest they get at it, and carry the bacilli.

During the fly season greater attention should be given to the screening of rooms containing tubercular patients, and in all food stores and homes proper precautions should be taken to prevent flies gaining access to foodstuffs of every kind.

An eminent Japanese army surgeon recently made a special study of the justly dreaded cholera in North China, and found that the chief source of propagation was the house fly, which he detected in carrying the cholera vibrios.

Prof. Nuttal, the highest English authority on the house fly, found by experimentation that flies harbor plague germs for more than 48 hours after feeding on diseased animals.

There is much less evidence regarding the carriage of small-pox and diphtheria by flies than the diseases mentioned, but Jepson and Nuttal have found that there have been cases of such carriage. Dr.
 Howard discovered in an epidemic of pink-eye among Florida school children that flies, settling about the eyes of children stricken with that disease, actually carried it to other children. This is true, also, in cases of parasitic worms, which often trouble children, the eggs of which are carried by the fly.

In fact, we are only just beginning to find out how many diseases the fly acts the chief part in carrying and propagating, but enough has already been discovered to make the fly our most dangerous and deadly enemy.

If we would escape this pest we must keep our houses well screened, and the utmost care must be taken to keep them away from refuse in which they breed, and from disease-containing material on which they feed.

A piece of wire window screen 4x6 inches placed in a split wooden handle with a few tacks driven through to hold it, can be cheaply made, so that each member of a family can have one "flier" that will kill in 99 out of every 100 cases, as the open network in the wire allows the air to pass through without pressure on the under side while in quick motion. A child can handle it about as effectually as an adult, and it works like magic—no patient pending. So get busy and join the anti-fly brigade, and help destroy these winged scavengers, that are so prolific in bringing disease germs into our homes. Do all that is possible to prevent them from getting into the house, and "swat" those that slip in irrespective of your vigilance, for their presence is an ever-menacing danger to every inmate.

"I wouldn't be in Brown's shoes just now." "Why not?" "I left them in the cellar, and they dumped four tons of coal on them before Brown was up."

There came, with life's declining sun,
 The day when he must die.

False had he been in deed and word;

For what he promised to the Lord
 He always failed to pay:

And when there came the touch of death

And he could scarcely draw his breath

He struggled hard to say:—

I know I failed to do my part:
 And now the weight upon my heart

Is heavy as a clod:
 The weight which drags me down

To hell

Most surely is, I know right well,
 What I withheld from God.

My sinful soul is filled with dread:
 For I am called that path to tread

Thus far by me untrod:
 And now with deep distress I see

The cause of all my woe to be,
 What I withheld from God.

He gave me means of making wealth:

He gave me life and light and health

And strength of mind and limb:
 But I became to self a slave,

And while to me He all things gave,
 I nothing gave to Him.

His claims I would not recognize:
 My mind became obscured by lies:

I heeded not the rod:
 Resisting still the will divine,

That which was His I claimed as mine,

And kept it back from God.

"Too late," my folly now I see:
 "Too late," For soon my dust will be

 Beneath the silent sod.

Let others shun the death I die:
 Let others heed my latest cry:—

Do not withhold from God.

AID TO HORSEMEN.

Advice to Canadian Farmers on the Breeding of Thoroughbreds.

During recent years many appeals have been made to the Hon. the Sydney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, by horsemen anxious to bring about an improvement in the quality of our light horse stock, and who are of opinion that for this purpose an infusion of thoroughbred blood is essential. Recognizing the force of these appeals as well as the importance of the subject, Mr. Fisher has decided to grant assistance under certain specified conditions to persons, maintaining thoroughbred stallions for service in the various provinces.

In deciding upon this step the Minister has been largely influenced by the fact that while stallions of other recognized breeds, when in capable hands, are, as a rule, fairly profitable, this is seldom the case with regard to the Thoroughbred;
 the advantages of breeding to horses of this class being unfortunately not fully realized by the present generation of Canadian farmers.

The lack in our light horses of the quality derivable only from the infusion of Thoroughbred blood is the subject of adverse comment by all European horsemen who visit the Dominion with a view to investigating its possibilities as a field for the purchase of horses, whether for produce the best results, be, in such cases, a strong admixture of Thoroughbred blood.

The conditions under which assistance will be given are as follows:—

(1.) All horses of account of which aid is given by the Department must be registered in the Thoroughbred Stud Book of the Canadian National Live Stock Records.

(2.) Horses shall be of good size, quality and conformation and shall be free from all hereditary unsoundness; these conditions to be ensured by submission annually to a thorough careful examination either at the hands of the Veterinary Director General or such other members of the veterinary staff of the Department, or other persons as the Minister may from time to time appoint for this purpose.

(3.) Horses so approved shall be duly and properly advertised to stand for service of mares, under the ordinary and general conditions usual in the districts in which they are to be kept, at an annual service fee (except in the case of Thoroughbred mares) of not more than $10 to insure, such service fee to become due and payable only when mares prove to be in foal.

Any person, firm or corporation owning or controlling any Thoroughbred stallion in regard to which all of the conditions above set forth shall have been duly and properly fulfilled, shall, on production of satisfactory evidence thereof and of the fact that a reasonable number of mares, other than Thoroughbred mares, have been served during the season, be entitled to receive at the close of each such season the sum of $250.00 from the funds of the Live Stock Branch.
 If, in the event of a horse dying or becoming incapacitated for service during the season, an approved substitute is immediately placed in the same district, the Minister may, after due consideration of the circumstances, authorize the payment of the subsidy above-mentioned.

The necessary forms will be furnished on application to the Veterinary Director General and Live Stock Commissioner, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

WHEN THE WORM TURNS.

The strangest animal in the world is a little green worm found on the coasts of Brittany and Normandy. On a fine, warm day, when the tide goes out, myriads of these "convoluta paradoxa" can be seen on the sands; but the moment the incoming tide touches them they vanish underground. Their mode of living is very extraordinary.
 When hatched, they feed voraciously on tiny sea-plants. In a week or so their bodies become filled with these green plants, and then the worms strike. They refuse absolutely to eat any more, and the labor of nourishing them is thrown on the plants. The little green plants live inside the worms, just in the same way as outside, getting their food from the air which is digested by the worms. But, as age advances, the plants cannot keep up with the demands of their hosts. Then the worms turn on their guests, and devour them all.
 But this seals their fate. They are too lazy to feed in the regular way, and so they quickly die of starvation.

A penn'orth of practice is worth a pound of preaching.

When the thermometer registers 103 in the shade it may be bad for the growth of some things but always good for whiskers. The best shaving soap made, (ask your barber) and everything that makes shaving a pleasure, Razors, strops, face creams, etc., at The Medical Hall—Fred L. Hooper.

The Queer Carabao.

The carabao is said to be slower than a camel and more obstinate than a mule. Every one seems agreed that the chief ambition in life of a carabao, if he has any at all, is to lie down in a puddle of water with just his nose and horns sticking out. Consequently considerable commotion rules the wagon train when it approaches a stream that must be forded. The soldiers who are walking behind the carts as guards lay aside their rifles and begin to belabor each animal. In the middle of the stream the excitement reaches its highest pitch. The carabao will begin to stretch his neck and bend his knees and grunt—infallible indications of his intention to lie down.

Thumb Cut Off.

Monday morning last about nine o'clock, Mr. George Robinson, an employee in the Gibbard Furniture Company's factory, met with an accident whereby he lost the thumb of his right hand by it coming in contact with a saw while sawing lumber.

Hair Dye.

We have the "old fashioned hair restorer" that restores the hair to its natural color. It is not a nitrate of silver dye that shows on the hair so everybody can see that the hair has been dyed, but a "color restorer". It is put up in $1.00 bottles, and can be procured in Napanee only at Wallace's Drug Store—The Rexall Agency.

$5000 Added Money.

With $5000.00 added to the prize money for horses, the display of aristocratic horsemanship at the Canadian National Exhibition this year promises to eclipse anything in its history. Every class, from the pony to the draft animals, promises to fill exceptionally well, and the result can only be the greatest display of horses ever seen in Canada.

Special Notice!

We have inaugurated a special delivery to hotels for the benefit of farmers, during the time of the progress of the sewer on front street. All orders will be delivered immediately. If you have any repair work we will send and get it from your rig and return it as soon as done.

The King Honors Canadian Boys.

London, July 5.—While the Canadians at the Scout review were before the King yesterday, Francis Philip Galbraith and Donald Chadsey received medals. His Majesty asked General Baden-Powell for particulars as to their achievement in tracking a man who shot and wounded the Chief of Police of Red Deer, Alta., and said their courage was highly commendable. Mr. Galbraith is a grand nephew of Miss Jessie McBean, Napanee, who is now visiting in Red Deer, Alberta.

Caught in the West.

Provincial Detective Josesh Greer left for Edmonton Saturday night to bring back Peter Sherman Wagar, who is wanted on a charge of rape and assault on May 23rd at Camden East near Napanee, Miss Margaret Doyle having been attacked by an assailant at that time unknown. Wagar who was suspected, disappeared. A warrant was issued for his arrest, and descriptions published and circulated. Word came that he had been located near Edmonton, Alberta, and a request was forwarded to the North-West Mounted Police on June 13th,

On Monday fire was discovered in a frame dwelling near the park, owned by Mrs. McFarlane. The firemen were promptly on the scene and extinguished the blaze though not before the house was badly damaged. The contents were removed with little damage. Mrs. McFarlane was absent from home when the fire took place and cause of fire is unknown. The water pressure was very poor.

A very sad funeral service was held at the Union church, Ernestown Station, on Tuesday, July 4th, on the arrival of the noon express from the west, when all that was mortal of Daniel Lawlor was conveyed to its last resting place. The community received a shock on Monday morning when the news of Dannie's tragic death flashed over the wires. He had lived in this vicinity since boyhood and was well and favorably known. Last spring he moved to Belleville, and was employed on the G.T.R., as brakeman when death so suddenly overtook him. About midnight Sunday last he responded to a call and was in the act of flagging a train when he unconsciously stepped in front of the fast express, and the rest can better be imagined than described. He was the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lawlor, and with the exception of one who died in infancy, was the first break in a family of eight children, four brothers and three sisters, his father, mother, wife and little daughter mourn the loss of a loving son, husband and father.

Siren in Skirts.

Which is the most recent siren (of the animal variety) in history? Jacobus Nolas relates that in 1403 a siren was captured in the Zuider Zee. She was (says Mr. Norman Douglas in "Siren Land") brought to Haarlem and, being naked, allowed herself to be clothed; she learned to eat like a Dutchman; she could spin thread and take pleasure in other maidenly occupations; she was gentle and lived to a great age. But she never spoke. The honest burghers had no knowledge of the language of the sea folk to enable them to teach her their own tongue, so she remained mute to the end of her days.

Making Use of It.

"There is no use giving you a check, my dear. My bank account is overdrawn."

"Well, give it to me anyway, George. And, say, make it for $500. I want to pull it out of my shopping bag with my handkerchief at the bridge game this afternoon."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

that must be forced. The soldiers who are walking behind the carts as guards lay aside their rifles and begin to belabor each animal. In the middle of the stream the excitement reaches its highest pitch. The carabao will begin to stretch his neck and bend his knees and grunt—infallible indications of his intention to lie down. Everybody works like a beaver to prevent him from accomplishing this fell purpose, but their labors are not always successful. They may get him over the stream, but this is unusual good fortune.—Harper's Weekly.

The Aurora Borealis.

According to a theory enunciated by Professor Lenard, the aurora borealis is formed of cathode rays, emitted by the sun and deflected by the terrestrial magnetic field in the upper strata of the atmosphere. The velocity of these cathode rays must be nearly equal to that of light and very much greater than the velocity of cathode rays produced in the laboratory. Lenard concludes that these extremely "hard" cathode rays are emitted by unknown radioactive substances in the sun.

WOMEN IN WALL STREET.

They Are Good Winners, but Drown Their Losses in Tears.

To many brokers women are hoodoos, and some stock exchange houses refuse absolutely to have anything to do with the fair sex. The majority of brokerage firms try their best to keep women's speculative accounts out of their offices. Some houses are obliged to take women's accounts as a matter of personal friendship, but they will not open accounts for other women, no matter how well they may be introduced.

Wall street men do not have a high opinion of the average woman's business sense. Most women have an idea that one needs only to get a "tip" from some "insider" in Wall street to be sure of making "barrels of money"—for new gowns, hats and jewelry.

The dictum of Wall street is that women are good winners, but bad losers. It is difficult to reason about money and business with an angry or weeping woman. Her view of Wall street and all its works suddenly becomes entirely emotional, and only a broker with infinite patience can calm her. Many a time a stock exchange house has taken a woman customer's loss rather than face her tears.—Strand Magazine.
